

Sales Job Is Needed For City

Sedalia's mayor and City Council are going to have to launch quite a publicity campaign in order to gain enough support to pass their new City Hall proposal at the polls next Sept. 14.

At least, that's the way it appears on the basis of a spot telephone survey taken within the city by The Democrat-Capital in the last two days.

Of the 14 persons chosen at random, six said they were in favor of a new City Hall and had no objections to the method of financing the municipal building proposed by the city's mayor and buildings and grounds committee. Two declined comment on the issue and the remaining six indicated they were not well enough acquainted with the proposal to make a decision at this time.

Among those in favor of the issue were Mrs. Marjorie Garanson, Broadway Arms Apartments, who said that "I've always felt that we've needed a new City Hall," and Charles E. Robb, 520 South Park, who commented, "I think it's a good idea ... when people come to town, our City Hall isn't very impressive."

Others in favor of a new City Hall are Mrs. Gordon Wolf, 1208 South Murray, Mrs. Alvin Niederwimmer, 1615 East 14th, and Mrs. Vickie Copas, 634 East 15th, who said that the current structure has "kind of seen its day."

Most people in favor of the new City Hall also feel that the mayor and City Council have dealt fairly with the public.

Mrs. Niederwimmer said she thought Mayor Jerry Jones has "pretty well stood behind what he's said," while Mrs. Wolf said "the mayor puts a lot of hours in and I think he deserves something better than what he's got."

When questioned about the credibility of the City Council, Robb said he thought "most people believe them," and Mrs. Copas replied "I think they're trying to better the city."

Mayor Jones and the three members of the city's buildings and grounds committee, Martin Biggs, Carl Franklin and Leo Letourneau, revealed plans for the new City Hall last Wednesday. All three committee members are councilmen.

The proposal calls for a new municipal building to be constructed just west of the present City Hall at a cost of $600,000. Money for the building would come from city sales tax receipts, without an additional burden to the taxpayer.

Although Mrs. Garanson said she thought "a lot of people will misunderstand" the proposal, one man interviewed during the survey said he recognized the need for new facilities from a first-hand point of view.

"I'm in favor of it," he commented, "providing they do something with the city jail. I've spent several days there myself, and it's in terrible shape."

Compliance With Guidelines Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Democratic reform commission said today 38 state parties will have complied by the end of this year with new guidelines designed to seat more political newcomers as 1972 national convention delegates.

The commission chairman, Rep. Donald M. Fraser of Minnesota, said the other 12 states and the District of Columbia have been slowed in many cases by laws and political customs.

Fraser said the 18 guidelines represent the Democratic party's most fundamental reform in a century and "demonstrate conclusively that we are the party of the people."

Their intent, he said, is to end restrictive rules and practices reformers charge have made delegate selection an ingroup activity.

Fraser said the lagging states could spark credentials fights at next year's convention in Miami Beach.

'Normal' Relations Key To Nixon Visit

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon has announced he will visit Peking within 10 months at the invitation of Communist China's premier, Chou En-lai. The President said he would seek a "normalization" of U.S.-mainland China relations.

The visit was arranged last weekend by Chou and Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's adviser for national security affairs who made a secret stop in Peking during a 10-day trip around the world.

Negotiators Fail To Stop Strikers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Strikers began shutting down the Southern Railway and the Union Pacific today after all-night summit negotiations at the Labor Department failed to produce agreement on work rules.

The two lines together account for 8.9 per cent of the nation's rail miles and carry 23 per cent of all rail shipments of farm produce, according to industry figures.

However, negotiations among Cabinet officials, railroad presidents and President Charles Luna of the AFL-CIO United Transportation Union were set to resume later, possibly today.

"We're still bargaining," he said. "We're going to get some rest."

Luna was joined in the extraordinary session which began at 7 p.m. Thursday by Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe and five railroad presidents.

The strike over work rules would idle an estimated 48,000 employees on the two roads and affect Southern and Western states. However, effects of the strike—the nation's third major rail stoppage in seven months—would be felt in various degrees by other railroads as surely as the nation's rail system is joined together. Few commuters would be affected.

Also at the Labor Department bargaining table were the president of the Norfolk & Western and a representative for

The President's unexpected announcement was made Thursday night on nationwide television and radio.

Speaking for five minutes from the National Broadcasting Co. studios in Burbank, Nixon said the purpose of his mission behind the bamboo curtain "is to seek a normalization of relations between the two countries and also to exchange views on questions of concern to the two sides."

Nixon's disclosure drew a quick protest from Taipei, where Nationalist Chinese leaders were called into an emergency meeting. "The Chinese government has lodged a strong protest to the government of the United States," Chinese spokesman James Wei said after the session.

The Nixon journey is expected to have an impact on the 1972 presidential campaign in the United States and may have an influence on the search for a negotiated peace in Vietnam.

Now it is more widely assumed than ever that the Nixon administration will not challenge the bid this fall for admission of mainland China, to the United Nations.

In fact, the chief executive's reference to "normalization of relations" seemed to suggest that his visit to Peking will be climaxed by establishment of full diplomatic relations between the United States and the Communist government which took over mainland China 22 years ago.

Said Nixon, "I will undertake what I deeply hope will become a journey for peace—peace not just for our generation, but for future generations on this earth we share together."

The President quoted from a joint announcement, made simultaneously in Peking.

"Knowing of President Nixon's expressed desire to visit the People's Republic of China, Premier Chou En-lai, on behalf of the government of the People's Republic of China, has extended an invitation to President Nixon to visit China at an appropriate date before May 1972. President Nixon has accepted the invitation with pleasure."

Many congressional Democrats, including a number of Nixon's most likely 1972 election challengers, were quick to welcome the development.

Nixon, who has been attempting publicly for some months to ease strains between Washington and Peking, sent Kissinger on a global-circling mission July 1, the focal point ostensibly being talks with South Vietnamese leaders in Saigon and U.S. peace negotiators in Paris.

Once Kissinger reached Pakistan a week ago, however, the roving emissary contracted a diplomatic illness, a "stomach upset." He supposedly retired to a resort to recuperate scrapping plans for a luncheon, with Pakistani President Mohammed Agha Yahya Khan. That's when Kissinger slipped away to Peking.

In the days ahead, attention will focus not only on domestic political repercussions of the Nixon announcement in the United States but on the response from Moscow, long at odds with Peking.

Said Nixon in his TV-radio appearance, words apparently aimed both at Nationalist China and the Soviet Union:

"Our action ... will not be at the expense of our old friends. It is not directed against any other nation. We seek friendly relations with all nations. Any nation can be our friend without being any other nation's enemy."

"I have taken this action because of my profound conviction that all nations will gain from a reduction of tensions and a better relationship between the United States and the People's Republic of China."

Nixon labeled his planned journey to Peking as "a major development in our efforts to build a lasting peace in the world."

Almost ironically, Nixon was greeted by "get out of Vietnam" chants from a small but vocal group as he left the Burbank studios. As he was departing, someone asked if he was going to a Chinese restaurant for dinner.

"That's an idea," he responded. "I like the food." Actually, he went to a posh cosmopolitan dining place before returning by helicopter to his oceanside home here.

Midnight Deadline On Union Contract

Like the changing of the guard at Buckingham Palace, a new crew of pickets will replace four members of Union Local 6301, Communications Workers of America, at Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., at midnight in Sedalia.

The shift is created by a difference in the expiration dates of three-year labor contracts with two different subsidiaries of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., which operates both Western Electric Co., and Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

The expiration of a contract with Western Electric early Wednesday led to a walkout of union employees in a five-state area.

Not on strike, but honoring the picket lines set up by the striking Western Electric installers, are other CWA union members from Southwestern Bell here.

Roy L. Alexander, 2212 First Street Terrace, secretary-treasurer of Union Local 6314, Communications Workers of America, said Southwestern Bell employees will walk out and actively picket at midnight tonight, relieving the telephone installers now on picket duty.

He said that there were four Western Electric installers now walking on picket lines in Sedalia. "They set up another picket at the Southwestern Bell office in Marshall at 8 a.m. Thursday," Alexander said.

"If the situation, as far as negotiating goes, does not change between now and midnight, pickets at various points around Sedalia will replace the Western Electric union people here," Alexander said. He remarked that there seemed to be a lot of confusion nationally on who is on strike and who isn't.

Alexander also said that figures reported Wednesday regarding maximum salaries paid to telephone company employees were inflated compared to wages paid here. Earlier stories on the Associated Press cited maximums of $193 a week for craftsmen and $118 for operators.

He said the top wages paid in Sedalia were about $163 a week for craftsmen and $102.50 for operators.

Alexander said the latest wage offer by Southwestern Bell, which was reportedly up by 30 per cent over three years as inadequate. "We are so far behind other craft unions now in wages that such an offer would not allow us to catch up at all," he said.

Alexander said when his union local officially goes on strike at midnight, the walkout will affect around 128 employees here and 15 more in Marshall.

He said the last strike against Southwestern Bell here was in 1968, which involved Western Electric employees only. That particular strike lasted around two weeks.

Robert Johnson, Southwestern Bell Co., manager here could not be reached for comment.

Judiciary Is Attacked By Mitchell

LONDON (AP) — U.S. Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell said today the American judiciary has spent too much time "making new law and new public policy," and too little determining guilt or innocence.

Taking to task both the bar and the bench, Mitchell said: "We face in the United States a situation where the discovery of guilt or innocence as a function of the courts is in danger of drowning in a sea of legalisms."

The judiciary, he said, should "recognize that perhaps it has been too preoccupied in the exhilarating adventure of making new law and new public policy from the bench, and that this function of the courts has out-distanced the more sober task of judging guilt or innocence."

Hitting at a favorite theme in remarks prepared for the general assembly of the American Bar Association, Mitchell said both judges and lawyers have a responsibility to see that the right of an individual to a fair trial does not outweigh the right of society to speedy justice.

Many Benefits Are Expected

Mansfield: Nixon's Visit 'Could Help End War'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said today President Nixon's announcement of his forthcoming visit to mainland China "could very substantially help to end the Vietnam war."

And Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, commented that "Hanoi is bound to be looking over its shoulder" and wondering whether it can count on continued reliance on "big brother," — Red China — in carrying on the war.

Scott also suggested it would be advisable for the President to take representatives of the Senate with him on his trip.

Mansfield said "China may well be the third party, or one of the third parties, behind what has been happening at the Paris peace talks this month."

He said he assumed the seven-point peace plan advanced by the Communists "probably had the approval of Peking."

Mansfield and Scott talked with newsmen before the start of today's Senate session.

Scott said that some form of diplomatic relations may be established between the two countries.

He cautioned that he did not necessarily mean formal recognition of the mainland government and an exchange of ambassadors. He added that he had no inside information on such a move.

However, Sen. Peter Dominick, R-Colo., told the Senate he has some reservations about a Nixon visit to China.

He said if it proves to be a breakthrough in the President's efforts to end the Indochina war, "we all welcome it." But if not, he said, it could have "very adverse effects on our relations throughout the world."

Dominick noted that other Presidents have tried "personal diplomacy."

"Roosevelt did it and we had Yalta and Potsdam and Kennedy did it and we had the rose garden in Vienna followed by the Berlin wall and Cuban missile crisis," he said.

Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., was critical of the proposed trip.

"I do not know what has motivated the President in this move," he said.

"Perhaps it is our steadily diminishing capability to cope with Soviet expansionism and growing Soviet military might ... Perhaps the President has been led to believe that the establishment of liaison with Peking might lead to Chinese intervention with Hanoi to stop the war."

"Whatever it is, the President owes the American people an explanation. I hope it will be forthcoming soon."

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., who opposes establishment of U.S. diplomatic relations with Communist China, said he has not changed his views regarding that country but endorses Nixon's proposed trip as an effort to wind down the Vietnam war.

"I think we should see what we can do to get them to go along with us," Thurmond said.

"Electrifying ... stunning ... astounding" were some of the words used by others in reference to the announcement.

South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu was not immediately available for comment, but an aide said, "This is something he considers as an encouraging development."

The report reached the Far East in mid-morning and took government officials and the public by surprise. Newspapers rushed out extra editions and anxious callers jammed newspaper switchboards for details.

Nationalist China's ambassador to the United States, James C. Shen, told newsmen in Washington he was not informed of Nixon's plans until about half an hour before the President's broadcast.

His report apparently did not reach Taipei before the news reports, and at the news top officials of President Chiang Kai-shek's regime went into a hurried 45-minute conference. Afterward a spokesman said the government had "lodged a strong protest to the government of the United States."

Nixon's announcement surprised officials and private citizens in staunchly anti-Communist South Korea.

Cole Camp Church Counts 'A Century Of Blessings'

(Democrat-Capital Service)

COLE CAMP — St. John's Lutheran Church here has published a 20-page directory and history of the congregation to mark its centennial. The publication is titled "Century of Blessings" and traces the development of the church from its beginning in January, 1871, when a few Lutheran families of Northwest Prairie met to discuss the possibility of establishing a church.

The first worship service of the new congregation was held in July of that year, with the Rev. A. Baepfer, then supply pastor of Holy Cross Church, officiating.

In 1879, the Rev. C. E. Guenther was installed as the first resident pastor.

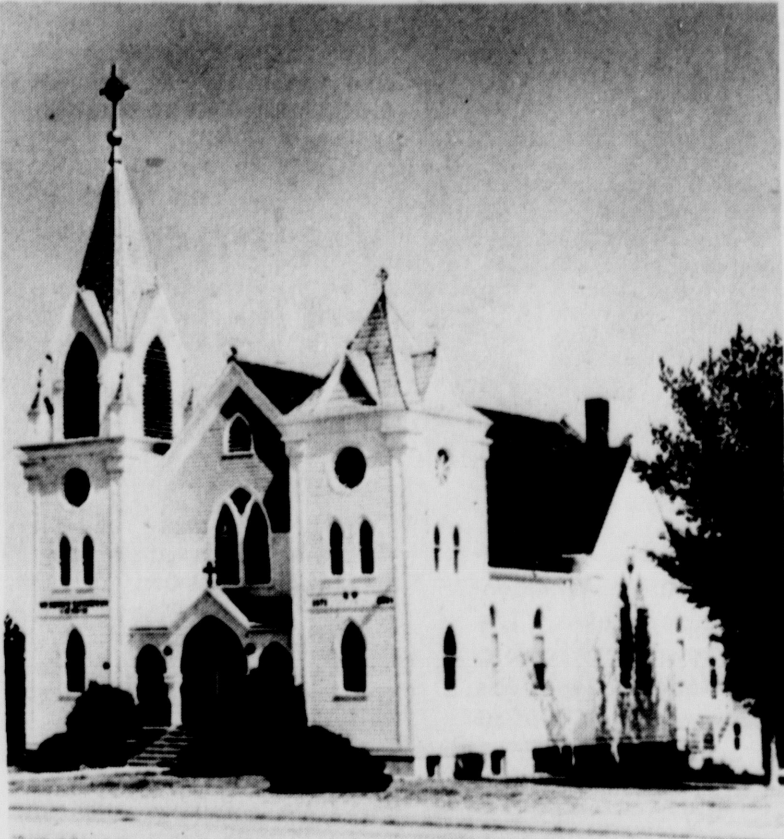

The congregation was accepted into the Missouri Synod in 1886. The present church building was constructed in 1921.

The St. John's Choral Society was organized in 1927, with Erhart Kaiser as president. Kaiser continues to be a member of the society.

Other historical highlights of the church include:

— 1932 — Ladies Aid donated the present pipe organ. It then cost $1,000.

— 1946 — A Sunday school was organized with Mrs. Irma Barni (Brockman) and Mrs. Marcus O. Harms as teachers.

Historic Edifice

Members of St. John's Lutheran Church in Cole Camp have scheduled several events to celebrate the 100th anniversary of their church. The bell in the church was donated in 1921 by the young people in the congregation. The pipe organ, a donation from Ladies Aid, has peeped out joyous anthems for 198 weddings.

Mrs. Harms still teaches a class. — 1947 — Began English service every Sunday in addition to the already existing German services held every first and third Sunday. The German services were discontinued in 1954.

— 1948 — Men's Club organized with 19 members; — 1967 — The congregation won the Church of Distinction Award from the University of Missouri; and — 1969 — Men's Club voted to sponsor Radio Volcano on Ascension Island, St. Helena, Africa.

During its 100 years of serving the community, the church has witnessed 674 baptisms, 510 confirmations, 198 marriages and 271 funerals, the directory noted.

The church has had nine pastors, with the Rev. Walter A. Moose serving as the tenth pastor. The first pastor was the Rev. E. A. Seiving who served from 1871 to 1878.

Commenting on the congregation's future, Mr. Moose said that the church is entering its second century "firmly rooted and grounded in the word of God."

He said that the public is invited to the following centennial services:

— July 25... 10 a.m. Speaker: the Rev. A. J. Schauer;

— Sept. 19... 10 a.m. Speaker: the Rev. Herman Scherer; and — Oct. 17... 10 a.m. Speaker: the Rev. Edgar Roschke; and 2 p.m., Dr. Oliver Harms.

Church Marks Centennial

VERSAILLES — Mt. Zion Mennonite Church near here has scheduled five special services in connection with its centennial celebrations.

A program of sacred music will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday. That evening at 7:30, the Rev. Harry Diener, Hutchinson, Kan., will preach a sermon.

Three services will be held Sunday — at 10 a.m., with the Rev. Daniel Kauffman, Leonard, Mo., as the speaker; at 2 p.m. with the Rev. J. D. Graber, Goshen, Ind.; and at 7:30 p.m. with the Rev. Fred Geringh, Alpha, Minn.

The services are open to the public, according to the Rev. Allen Zook, pastor.

Methodist Men Will Meet At Waverly

WAVERLY — The La-Saline Methodist Men's Club will meet at 6:30 p.m. Sunday at the Waverly Methodist church.

Club president, Raphael Hall, Sweet Springs, will preside. After a contributive dinner James Heitmeier, Carroll County Extension Agent, will speak on "Honest Weight-Methodist Measure."

At Lutheran Convention

Efforts To 'Control' Bible Interpretation Defeated

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Moderates hailed today the refusal of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod to impose a system binding its members to more detailed, uniform interpretations of the Bible.

Both sides voiced hope for an end to the strife.

"It was a turning point," said the Rev. Charles Born of Austin, Tex. "I think it has brought a healthy, reconciling spirit so that we can move on with greater trust and confidence to fulfill our role."

Conservatives had mounted a drive, led by the Church's president, the Rev. D. J. A. O. Preus, to codify beliefs further and require adherence by pastors, professors and members.

In a tumultuous session Thursday, the Church's governing convention voted 485-425 to scrap the proposal and substitute a statement generally reaffirming past stands on doctrine.

"They didn't want to be boxed in," said the Rev. Richard Labore of St. Louis. "It was not a matter of Christian faith, but of the style of doing it."

Of the push for tighter dogmatic controls, he added, "It's a dying cause."

Dr. Preus, elected president of the 2.8-million-member Church two years ago in a conservative bid to establish more doctrinal supervision, said he had backed the plan with "heart and soul as well as mind."

On its defeat, he told delegates in an emotion-laden voice that the outcome would "cause us a great deal of difficulty" in trying to find means of dealing with theological vagaries.

Later, after the convention had approved some additional, but still modified, positions on doctrinal matters, he said:

"Let us pray that this serves the true cause of reconciliation."

Delegates rose and sang the doxology, "Praise God from whom all blessings flow," bringing a note of peace and harmony to a meeting that shortly before had erupted in shouts and disorder.

Dr. Preus, center of controversy because of a recent investigation he directed into beliefs of faculty members at Concordia Seminary in St. Louis, said he had no plans for further investigations.

Asked at a news conference if he would accept the convention action on doctrinal standards or continue to advocate expanding them, he said, "The president abides by the decision of the Church." He added, "It's not quite correct to regard this as a major defeat."

The rejected proposal, which he had backed at the outset of the convention as the main business before it, would have made convention resolutions defining Scripture binding, and limited dissent to official channels.

Like other Lutherans, the Missouri-Synod in its constitution sets only the Scriptures and the exposition of them in historic Lutheran confessions as its criteria of belief.

This convention reaffirmed that position, reiterating past advice also to "honor and uphold" convention doctrinal statements, adding that those prepared by official theological bodies and subjected to church-wide study and approval should be regarded with "special seriousness." Delegates also directed the board of Concordia Seminary to "take appropriate action" on the investigation findings, and report back to the convention. New members of the board elected here are mostly moderates and support the seminary.

Its president, the Rev. Dr. John H. Tietjen told newsmen, "I don't think any faculty member is in jeopardy."

New Church Plans V. B. S.; Seeks Help

The newly-formed Northside New Hope Baptist Church, 402 West Henry, plans to hold a vacation Bible school Aug. 16-20, according to the Rev. Mrs. A. M. Williams, pastor.

Mrs. Williams said that the Rev. Orval F. Woolery, of the Harmony Baptist Association, and the Rev. Glen Nelson, pastor of Quinn Chapel A.M.E. Church, have agreed to cooperate in planning the Bible school. Other area pastors are requested to join the planning committee and help in securing teachers for different age groups, she said.

She added that a barbecue will be held at 2 p.m. July 29 at the Indian Foothill Park's Seminole court shelter house in Marshall. Donations at the barbecue will go to the church fund. More information can be obtained by calling 826-8228 or 827-0136, she said.

Pastor Makes 'Extra' Income

WARREN, Ill. (AP) — The Rev. George E. Ford, a Baptist minister, works full time as a carpenter and preaches on Sunday.

He said his ministerial work only pays him $50 a week and the carpentry enables him to supplement his income. But he sees other advantages in the combination.

"A cabinetmaker has to saw and fit pieces together to satisfy a customer," he said. "But when a man puts himself at the disposition of the Lord, he becomes the one who is sawed and fitted, and the end design may never be fully seen."

Campaign For Cans Amazing

MANCHESTER, Iowa (AP) — Two Manchester banks found out Thursday to the tune of $1.350 that people can be ecology-minded.

It all started as part of the Delaware County town's annual celebration of "Ridiculous Day." The two banks offered to pay a penny for every can brought in.

By noon, when the banks stopped buying cans, about 135,000 cans had been turned in the town's main street had a pile of cans estimated at 20 feet wide, 50 feet long and up to 10 feet deep.

"It's amazing," said R. E. Tool, president of the Farmers and Merchants Savings Bank. He helped count the cans between 9 a.m. and noon.

"We figured we would get about 25,000," he said. "One woman drove up with a four-door sedan piled full of cans in the back seat. Then she opened the trunk and that was full too. There were 1,300 cans in that one car." But the largest haul came from a pickup truck with about 7,000 cans.

"We were buying them off with pennies, but soon we had to start using other coins and even paper money," said Tool. He said most of the cans were brought in boxes and sacks by youngsters.

"The merchants every year have sales with ridiculous prices and they asked the banks to come up with a gimmick to have a little fun with, so we decided to buy beer and pop cans at a penny apiece. We see so many on highways that we thought it would make a good clean up proposition and ecology deal," said Tool.

"The city said they'd dispose of them, but they didn't anticipate that many. They'll probably take them out to the dump," Tool said Thursday afternoon.

The other bank involved was the First State Bank of Manchester.

Researchers Dig 'Mysterious' Events

By TOM WELLS
Associated Press Writer

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A research team is trying to find scientific evidence of something a carpenter from Bethlehem said nearly 2,000 years ago — that there is life after death.

Their research has led the scientists into the investigation of superstitions and reports of mysterious happenings that have followed man's course through history.

So far, they have not proved or disproved that a human being's soul or other part of him lives after his body dies. But they are convinced that such phenomena as extrasensory perception — ESP — and objects flying through the air for no apparent reason do exist.

The organization, called the Psychical Research Foundation, was founded 10 years ago. Its headquarters is in two yellow, farm houses in a residential neighborhood of Durham.

The director, W. G. Roll, a graduate of Oxford University and others connected with the foundation say a part of the reason for their slow progress is that many scientists think their studies are a waste of time.

The bulk of the foundation's financing comes from bequests.

Some of the work of the foundation has been the investigation of poltergeists, the unexplained movement of objects. The researchers say they have witnessed such occurrences.

Persons connected with the foundation are reluctant to talk about such studies, for two reasons: a fear that reporters will see the work as unscientific ghost chasing, and because they are afraid information on specific families may lead to crank telephone calls and other pranks.

One expedition last year was to a small town in Kentucky, said Dr. Robert Morris, a post-doctorate fellow in the psychiatry department of the Duke Medical Center who works part time with the foundation.

A newspaper reporter made the initial report to the foundation, saying that he himself had seen objects move in a house.

An investigator from the foundation was sent to the scene. The objects, as big as tables, continued to move about, he said. There was no apparent motive for fraud. The family living in the house was impoverished and scared. No wires, trick doors or other signs of fraud were found.

Roll himself investigated.

"The unusual events continued to occur," Dr. Morris said. "Often it was under the observation of the two observers from the foundation. In one instance the kitchen table rose up and rotated at a 45 degree angle and then came to rest with the underside of the table on the backs of the chairs with the table legs off the floor."

Eventually, the investigators were forced to leave, "almost at the point of a gun," Morris said. The leader of a community church had convinced the family that the devil was at work and that the investigators were only aggravating the situation, Morris said.

Roll says most poltergeist cases involve a so-called "agent," someone whose presence seems to be connected with the movement of the objects. That was the case in Miami recently.

Objects reportedly had been flying off of shelves in a warehouse where novelty items were stored. The breakings were always found to occur in the presence of an anxiety-plagued young Cuban who worked in the warehouse.

Roll checked the warehouse for fraud and found no wires or other devices that could cause the objects to fly through the air. He said he placed several specific objects on shelves in positions where it would be impossible for them to fall.

Roll said he examined the objects in advance and that they were normal, but that even these flew through the air. He added he saw one of the objects in flight just before it crashed to the floor. Other objects dashed to pieces far from where they had been positioned, he said.

No one was in the warehouse area who could have hurled the objects to the floor, Roll said. The breakings remain a mystery.

In Jacksonville, Fla., for instance, two investigators from the foundation visited a house where an apparition reportedly had been seen several times.

One investigator, Dr. John Artley, an electrical engineering professor at Duke University, said he saw a glowing light "about the size of a football" at the foot of a bed where seconds before he had seen nothing. Then it disappeared.

He said nothing, wondering if it was an hallucination. "Did you see that?" asked Artley's co-worker. Neither could explain it.

The Psychical Research Foundation also is studying a Trinidad native who apparently has powers far beyond those of most people who claim to have the sixth sense of ESP.

For almost two years, Lalsingh Harribence, 31, has been undergoing daily tests of his ESP powers while a machine called EEG records his brain waves.

In a 10-minute test of his ESP on this reporter, Harribence made no incorrect statements about several items of information which he had no apparent way of knowing previously, including the fact that a specific toenail needed trimming worse than others.

Minister Says

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Leaving a scene of human struggle and hope, he has moved into a studio atmosphere. From turbulence, he has stepped into comparative quiet. Yet it's an area, he says of deepening affliction in America.

"It's ominous," says the Rev. J. Michael Allen, New Haven, Conn., the new associate dean of Yale Divinity School.

"More and more, it has become clear that a fundamental, emerging problem in our country is the despair and alienation of white, middle-class youth. And that means in the universities."

Dean Allen for 10 years was an Episcopal minister on Manhattan's shabby lower East Side where he mixed robust worship, drama, art, jailtime, marches and battling for social and racial justice. Of his shift to the academic world, he says:

"It's where the hurt and need has intensified. Students have fallen into a terrible despair. It just wells up in them. They're crying out for something, for gentleness and compassion. But they see only horrors.

"So they're giving up, cutting out. That's why the campuses have been so quiet this year. It's a frightening thing for the future of the kids and the future of the country."

A bearded, vigorous priest of 43, Dean Allen took up his post July 1, as director of Berkeley Center, a center for experimentation in the training of ministers for the church.

It was created out of a new affiliation between Yale and Berkeley Divinity School, of which he remains dean.

His new book, "This Time, This Place," published by Bobbs-Merrill, is a moving, perceptive commentary on faith under fire of modern challenges to it.

"We are a nation afraid... that in giving others a share in freedom we will lose it, as if there were not enough freedom to go around," he writes of the civil rights struggle of blacks in which he twice went to jail.

But he maintains that social involvement demands prayer and that the two are interdependent.

As an educational administrator, Dean Allen, a World War II Army officer and magazine writer before entering the ministry, said that "if there ever was a time in history for understanding the meaning of the Cross, this is it."

Noting that Jesus, in the defeat of the Crucifixion, actually was victorious, he added:

"Maybe it's time for withdrawal, for a moratorium. If we've totally given up, we may be ready for triumph. At least faith means being able to live in the midst of squallor and still find beauty, meaning and purpose."

Dr. Mehl To Take Two Pastorates

(Democrat-Capital Service)

CONCORDIA — Dr. L. J. Mehl, retiring president of St. Paul's College, Concordia, will be installed pastor of Zion Lutheran church, Blackburn, and Bethlehem Lutheran Church, Mt. Leonard. The installation service will be held at 7 p.m. Sunday at the Blackburn church. The preacher will be the Rev. R. Beese of Corder and the officiant, the Rev. O. Hellewege of Marshall. A reception for the Mehl will be held in the church Fellowship Hall, after the installation.

OBITUARIES

Mrs. Ethel Hammond

Mrs. Ethel L. Hammond, 52, 1000 East Seventh, died at Bothwell Hospital at 4:07 p.m. Thursday. She had been a patient at the hospital since July 6.

Mrs. Hammond was employed at Burton's Dress Shop as a saleslady.

She was born in Saskatchewan Province, Canada, June 1, 1919, daughter of the late Fred Benjamin and Pebble Odella Lytle Billingsley.

She was married at Kansas City June 2, 1940 to John O. Hammond, who died June 15, 1963.

Mrs. Hammond had lived in Sedalia for the past 29 years. She was a member of the First Baptist Church, Warrensburg.

Surviving are two sons, Larry Hammond, Liberty; Ronald Dale Hammond, 1101 South Grand; one brother, Clarence Skidmore, Holden; four sisters, Mrs. Juanita Drinkwater, Liberty; Mrs. Catherine Wietling, Liberty; Mrs. Freda Clear, Warrensburg; and Mrs. Goldie Nicholson, Raytown.

Funeral services will be held at the Ewing Funeral Home at 2 p.m. Saturday with the Rev. Orval Woolery officiating.

Burial will be in the Sunset Hill Cemetery, Warrensburg.

The body is at the funeral home where the family will receive friends from 7 to 9 p.m. Friday.

H. Oliver Foraker

H. Oliver Foraker, 86, 306 West Third, died at 1:20 a.m. Friday at the Fairview Nursing Home.

He was born Sept. 17, 1884 at Timewell, Ill., son of John and Fredrica Frigat Foraker. In 1910 he married Mary L. Batters, who survives.

He was raised and educated at Timewell. As a young man he went to Galesburg, Ill., where he was employed by Bonei Brothers. He then came to Sedalia in 1907 with Bondi Brothers and later bought the store, which he operated until his retirement in 1944. He was a member of the First Christian Church.

Also surviving are two nieces, Mrs. Gladys Keats, Evanston, Ill.; Mrs. Ina Foraker, Harvey, Ill.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Monday at the McLaughlin Funeral Home with the Rev. Robert Magee, assisted by the Rev. Richard Leach, officiating.

Music will be provided by Mrs. Lou Tempel and Mrs. Jack Herndon.

Burial will be in Crown Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Roy Strain

KANSAS CITY, Kan. — Mrs. Roy (Bertha) Strain, 70, formerly of Sedalia, died at St. Margaret's Hospital here at 7 p.m. Thursday.

She was born in St. Louis March 4, 1900, daughter of the late William and Elizabeth Penning McGreevy. She was married in Sedalia Sept. 20, 1926 to Roy B. Strain, who survives.

Also surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Ray (Elizabeth) McCollum, Kansas City, Kan.; two sisters, Mrs. Rudolph Ramlow, Kansas City, Kan., formerly of Sedalia; Mrs. Walter Seaman, Casper, Wyo.; and a cousin, Mrs. Leland Coontz, 1000 East 11th, Sedalia.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. Monday at the Simmons Funeral Home here.

Burial will be in Maple Hill Cemetery.

Burial will be in Shilo Cemetery.

Actress' Income Varies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The life of a television performer can sometimes be a case of feast or famine, as actress Patte Finley will testify.

When you're a regular in a series, the money rolls in. And when you're canceled the checks stop arriving.

In 1969 Patte made "From a Bird's-Eye View," which is now being shown on NBC. "I was Mrs. Gotrocks that year all over Europe," she said.

In 1970 she made exactly $1,750 and her only job was a guest shot on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show." She said, "People ask me how I lived. Cheaply. No, off my savings. It was not the best of years. I got all my U.S. federal income tax back. My accountant, who charged me $250 the year before, offered to do it free."

Patte—pronounced Pat—is now taping NBC's "The Funny Side," which will take a humorous look at the American way of life.

"If I hadn't got 'The Funny Side' I think I would have just given up," she said. But even at the beginning of this year things began to look up. She got another guest shot on the Moore show and did several commercials as "your average Mrs. Housewife."

Kiwanians Are Told About Ship

Sedalia Kiwanians viewed a slide presentation and heard a talk on the hospital ship S.S. Hope at their meeting Thursday noon at the Bothwell Hotel.

Guest speaker was Don Wright, Lamar, Mo., who recently spent 10 months aboard the Hope as an amateur radio operator. Wright is a retired area supervisor of the Federal Aviation Administration.

Wright showed several color slides taken in Guinea, West Africa, where the Hope remained for his entire tour, treating the natives and training local medical personnel.

The speaker explained that the Hope is not an official project of the United States government, but is sponsored by the People-to-People program. It carries a staff of some 30 doctors as well as numerous other medical personnel.

The Rev. Greg. Hibbard, who learned of Wright through ham radio contact, introduced the speaker and his wife.

Other guests included Mrs. Hibbard; Herb Richards, with Henry Salveter; and Robert Malone, Jr., Grants, N. Mex., and Ronald Malone, Hollywood, Fla., with their father, Bob Malone.

President Monty McQuitty reported briefly on the recent Kiwanis International convention in San Francisco, which he attended.

Singing was led by Wendell Smith, accompanied by Mrs. Robert Woolery on the piano.

Economy Advances Slowly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's economy advanced steadily but unspectacularly in the April-June period, but inflation slackened to the lowest rate in three years, the government said today.

The Commerce Department said the Gross National Product, output of the nation's goods and services, scored a $19.7-billion increase in the second quarter, but more than half of the eight per cent climb was attributed to price increases.

The department said GNP reached a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $1,040 trillion in the quarter from April through June, with consumer spending leading the advance.

The increase fell short of the Nixon administration's forecast, and was a main reason why the President's advisers abandoned the target of an average $1,065 trillion GNP for all of 1971. The increase failed to match a $30 billion gain in the first three months of the year.

The department said the rate of inflation dropped to 4.2 per cent in the April-June period, down from the 5.3 per cent of the first quarter and the lowest one-quarter rate of inflation since the second quarter of 1968.

The economy actually advanced at a real rate of about 3 1/2 per cent, said by economists to be below the rate needed to cut into a high rate of unemployment.

On Thursday, the Federal Reserve Board signaled unhappiness with Nixon administration economic policies by lifting its sensitive discount rate a notch higher in a move toward tighter money.

4-H Project

The 32-member Hughesville 4-H Club, under the leadership of Mrs. Emma Lou Swopes, initiated in May a project to erect this welcome sign. With the help of the Community Betterment Club, the town's young people set the sign up recently. Among the 4-H members who helped in the project are, from left to

Police Report

Two wheels and tires were reported missing following a break-in at the South Fina Service Station, South Highway 65, at 2:50 a.m. Friday.

Police discovered that an overhead door at the station was open and notified the station manager, Paul Roberts Jr., 300 East 27th, who later reported the theft. Also missing was a window washing set. Roberts set his loss at $16.

A man who purchased a tire at Verl's Standard Service, 1801 West Broadway, walked away with three other tires while an attendant was in the rear of the station looking for some other merchandise.

William E. Kabler, 904 South Moniteau, discovered the theft as he left the back room and heard the trunk close on the man's car just before the man drove off. The three tires were valued at $87.50.

Robert Hyink, Des Peres, Mo., reported to police at 9:33 a.m. Friday that his car, a late-model Pontiac, parked at the Holiday Inn, had been broken into overnight. Entry to the car was gained through the right front window by someone using a coat hanger.

A pair of golf shoes, an underwater breathing apparatus and a radial ply tire were taken. The total value of the items was set at $507.

Circuit Court

The Missouri State Highway Commission filed dismissals of exceptions Thursday in Circuit Court in the cases of Harry and Betty Runge; W. F. Grace, Larry and Doris Mueller; and Charles and Myrtle Bybee.

All of the defendants, residents of Route 4, Sedalia, were originally named in three separate suits filed by the state in connection with the 1964 expansion of north Highway 65.

The suits took exception to the amounts granted the defendants by a state Board of Commissioners for land taken in the expansion project.

Evidence in the three cases was heard in Circuit Court Tuesday, as was similar testimony in four additional cases. Entries will be filed by the state in those cases at a later date.

Juanita Cole was granted a divorce from Leroy Cole in Circuit Court Thursday.

Accidents

Two women were injured when a brick porch railing collapsed, throwing them off the porch at 236 South Moniteau.

Gertrude Thompson, 84, 707 South Lafayette, suffered a three-inch cut on her head, numerous abrasions and complained of chest pains.

Christine Freeman, 236 South Moniteau, was pulled from the porch when she tried to keep Mrs. Thompson from falling, police said. Mrs. Freeman suffered a laceration to her right forearm and also complained of chest pains.

Both were treated and released from Bothwell Hospital.

Police said the house is owned by Thomas D. Russell, 234 South Moniteau.

Indebtedness Cut

On Kansas Turnpike

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — The bonded indebtedness the Kansas Turnpike Authority has been reduced to $129 million from the original $160 million in 1954.

The authority reported Thursday it retired bonds worth $9,091,000 at par value during 1970.

Officials said interest for the first five months of 1971 was $114,000 less than the first five months of 1970.

Violence Is Slight In Strike

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Isolated instances of vandalism have marked the strike by 400,000 members of the AFL-CIO Communications Workers of America but most telephone service across the nation continued to function normally.

Meanwhile, negotiators for the Bell Telephone System and the CWA continued talks on wages, fringe benefits and a variety of local issues.

The worst vandalism in the strike which began Wednesday occurred in Elgin, Ill., where a firebomb Thursday did an estimated $50,000 to $75,000 damage to a company garage. Windows were broken in the Elgin central office and shots were fired at a nonstriker's home.

Two phone company employees were arrested and charged with arson in the burning of cables that cut telephone service to 8,000 subscribers in Mundelein, Aurora and Libertyville, Ill.

There was similar cable damage in Vineland, N.J. and Gretna, Neb. About 15 cables have been cut in the Los Angeles area, affecting about 1,500 customers. In the San Francisco area some 2,700 subscribers were affected by cable cuts.

In each case, emergency crews worked to repair the damage and most service was quickly restored.

A sulphur bomb thrown into a New Rochelle, N.Y., telephone company office ventilating system forced the evacuation of more than 100 nonstrikers.

In Yonkers, N.Y., a phone company supervisor was beaten and slightly injured while performing emergency repairs. His companion, working atop a pole, escaped unscathed but their truck was vandalized.

A woman employee was assaulted as she attempted to leave a company parking lot at Nashville, Tenn., and a shot was fired into the car of another woman employee, a company spokesman said.

Eggs were thrown at company cars or vehicles driven by supervisory employees at Brooklyn Center, a Minneapolis suburb.

Art Koski, president of CWA Local 7250 in St. Paul, said the picket line violence was unprecedented but predicted, "It will continue. Gone are the days of buddy-buddy relationship between a complacent picket and the scab called management."

Union spokesman in Los Angeles, however, said they had told locals to eschew violence because it was not required to make the strike effective.

Because the dial system is heavily automated, phone company officials said the system should continue to operate near normal until equipment breakdowns become overwhelming. One spokesman predicted few hitches for at least a month.

BUSINESS NEWS

Over 500 persons attended the annual Travelers Protective Association (TPA) picnic Thursday night at the Knights of Columbus Recreation Center south of Sedalia. The picnic is one of two annual events sponsored by TPA for its members.

According to Harry Walch, president of TPA's local Post F, over 600 pounds of charcoal were used to barbecue chickens for the picnic. He said leftover chicken has been frozen and will be donated to local charity groups.

Al Horvat, state TPA president from St. Louis, attended the picnic.

Members of the food committee were Walch, chairman; Wayne Gibbs, P. A. Sillers, Bernard Stanfield, Neville Jonson, Charles "Chuck" Wendt, Ted Sims, Eugene Kreisels and George Riley.

Bill Hopkins, Terry Wilson and Aaron Smith were in charge of "TPA," the group's form of bingo.

Barbecuers were Kenny Schilb Sr., Wray Schroeder, Howard Wilson, Jack Pasley, Kenny Schilb Jr., Jerry Lollis, Jim Ryan and Mahlon "Dusty" Rhoads.

Vietnam Comment Delayed

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu and Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky had no immediate comment today on a report that the illegal drug traffic is helping to finance their presidential campaigns.

Phil Brady, a National Broadcasting Co. correspondent in Saigon, said his report was based on information from Vietnamese sources. It was broadcast Thursday on NBC Nightly News.

Brady said the sources told him that many illegal drugs are brought in by the Vietnamese air force with the "blessing" of Ky, a former commander of the air force.

The sources, Brady said, claimed Ky made a fortune smuggling gold and opium and "went on to say since becoming vice president Ky left the job to trusted subordinates in the air force but still shares in the profits. And, they added, Ky needs the money more than ever before for his presidential campaign chest."

Ky, who has announced he will oppose Thieu in the Oct. 3 election, has denied previous allegations that he smuggled narcotics and gold.

Brady said Thieu is obsessed with being re-elected and because he needs money for the campaign he is "not asking where it comes from."

Brady quoted his sources as saying "another outfit pushing drugs is the Vietnamese national police," commanded by Maj. Gen. Tran Thanh Phong, who "is said to also be raising money for the presidential race."

"The biggest pusher is said to be Lt. Gen. Dang Van Quang," Brady reported adding that Quang was relieved of his command for corruption several years ago but "today Quang is Thieu's closest adviser" and has "filled Thieu's campaign chest."

Rep. Robert H. Steele, R-Conn., told a House subcommittee in Washington last week that Maj. Gen. Ngo Dzu, military commander in the central highlands and central coastal region, was a major trafficker in narcotics. But Brady said that "according to extremely reliable sources," Dzu "is being framed by others higher up who are involved in drugs."

Dzu, who has denied Steele's allegation, said today he believes one man seeking "personal revenge" is behind the charges against him. He would not name the man, but sources close to Dzu said he had in mind Lt. Gen. Lu Lan, whom Dzu replaced in the central 2nd Corps area.

Bus Vans Unsafe

Safety Ruling Loopholes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A report describing bus wagons as marginally safe at best and inadequate at worst has pointed up loopholes permitting such vehicles to escape federal auto safety laws.

The report came Wednesday from Consumers Union, a non-profit, independent product-testing organization in Mount Vernon, N.Y., which rated crash protection in the Volkswagen bus wagon and the Ford Chateau Club Wagon as grossly inadequate. Chevrolet and Dodge models were rated marginal.

Volkswagen challenged Consumers Union to provide any information from crash tests and said its bus—which it calls a station wagon—meets existing federal front-end crash standards for automobiles. Ford had no immediate comment.

The report also disclosed the government has exempted bus wagons from many federal safety regulations by labeling them "multipurpose vehicles" or "forward-control vehicles." Thus, the bus wagons are not required to have head restraints. They need not have anti-theft locking steering columns, or collapsible steering columns designed to prevent drivers from being gored in a front-end collision. The seat belts required on automobiles since 1967 were required on bus wagons only since the first of this month. And shoulder harnesses are optional.

The vehicles also are exempt from the Department of Transportation proposed standards on occupant protection in crashes and rollovers.

The bus wagons were granted exemptions though advertised as family vehicles and promoted as alternatives to station wagons.

Ford listed its sales of the bus wagons this year at 11,494. It has been making the wagons for five years. Volkswagen sales hit a record 65,069 last year and have been over 50,000 a year since 1968.

In its upcoming "Consumer Reports" magazine, Consumers Union called the Ford's brakes inadequate and had these other complaints:

"The VW has so much difficulty keeping up with... highway traffic as to present a hazard not only to its occupants but to occupants of vehicles that share the road with it. We also judged that under some conditions lethal exhaust fumes could seep into the passenger compartments of the Dodge, the Ford and the VW buses."

The VW bus had received attention for its performance in collisions last year. The University of North Carolina rated it poorest with a death rate twice that of the average of other vehicles. Other bus wagon results were not compiled separately.

VW said it has redesigned its bus wagon since the North Carolina study, but Consumer Reports said the six inches of metal in front of a VW bus driver is not enough.

Farm Roundup

Wheat Program Touches Finalized By Officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nixon administration farm officials are putting final touches on the government's wheat program for 1972 production and are expected to announce details soon.

A near-record wheat crop is being harvested now. Last Friday the Crop Reporting Board estimated 1971 output at 1.548 billion bushels, less than 30 million bushels shy of the all-time record produced in 1968.

Further, a special survey of farmers' planting intentions in 14 major producing states showed producers intend to see 8.4 per cent more acreage to winter wheat this fall for harvest next year.

Larger domestic use and thriving exports during the marketing year ended June 30 meant a 20-per-cent shrink in the wheat carryover or surplus. However, at about 700 million bushels the stockpile on July 1, the beginning of the new year, still is huge and the most in three years.

Under the Agricultural Act of 1970 farmers no longer are held to strict acreage allotments. They can plant as much as they choose and, if they sign up in the government program, be eligible for price support loans on all that they raise.

Final operating details, including substitution privileges to grow other crops on wheat land and still qualify, are still to be announced.

The Agriculture Department announced last April 16 the 1972 national wheat acreage allotment will be 19.7 million acres, same as for 1971. That is the amount of wheat farmers can grow to produce all the grain needed next year to meet domestic food needs.

Under law, the domestic wheat allotment must be keyed to a minimum of 535 million bushels. The domestic share of the crop also is the basis for making price-support payments to farmers, making up the difference between what they get on cash markets and full parity price.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wage rates for hired farm workers not getting fringe benefits such as room and board averaged $1.74 per hour as of July 1, an increase of eight cents from a year earlier, says the Agriculture Department.

That also was 16 cents per hour more than the average on July 1, 1969, the Crop Reporting Board said in a monthly farm labor report.

Using a weighted average composed of side benefits, including housing and board, the rate on July 1, was $1.44 per hour, compared with $1.39 a year earlier, the report said.

On a monthly basis with a house provided, full-time farm workers averaged $349 per month on July 1, compared with $340 a year earlier and $319 two years ago.

... unless you're a rural woman

"Dear Editors: I love you!" That's the simple, direct note an Iowa farm wife sent us after receiving her first issue of Farm Wife News. "We've been needing a publication of our own for years," said a Kansas farm wife who, like her counterparts, is embittered by the move of the major farm magazines to eliminate the Women's Sections from their magazines. And they're delighted by the contents of this 24-page, 4-color, fact-packed (no ads!) newspaper-type publication. You will be, too—it's filled margin-to-margin with rural recipes, sewing tips, household hints, decorating ideas, strong opinions and candid photos... all gathered from farm women. Subscription price: Just $3.00 per year. PRINT your name and address and send to Farm Wife News, Dept. R.N., 1726 N. First, Milwaukee, WI 53212.

Politics In 'New' Face Of Nixon

By CARL T. ROWAN

WASHINGTON — Yes, Virginia, there may be a new Nixon.

The old Nixon, who damned as "inflationary" and vetoed last year's educational appropriations bill because it allocated $500 million more than he wanted, has faded away.

Rowan

The new Nixon has just signed a bill providing more than $5 billion for education during the current fiscal year—the most generous outlay for learning in the nation's history.

And President Nixon isn't resting on that laurel. He is prodding Congress to approve his request for $1.5 billion to help troubled school districts to desegregate their schools. He wants more money for aid to higher education.

Mr. Nixon's enthusiasm for education has even pushed him to campaign for "a special revenue-sharing" proposal giving cities and states $3 billion to use to improve education as they see fit (a proposal that most educators view as a Trojan horse which they don't want).

The ink was still moist on the education measure when the new Nixon signed a bill providing $2.2 billion over two years for the creation of public service jobs. This measure, which will provide a billion dollars this fiscal year and create 150,000 federally-subsidized jobs, is almost identical to a measure that the President vetoed last year. The old Nixon wrapped that veto in a lecture against the evils of "WPA-type" jobs.

It may be too foolhardy to try to explain the metamorphosis of Mr. Nixon. Better, perhaps, to gently applaud these expenditures for human uplift rather than for death and destruction.

But it is next to impossible to resist viewing these Nixon about-faces in the light of the ongoing debate as to whether it is better to have a six-year term for a President, with no re-election, or retain the four-year term with one re-election.

Those advocating one six-year term argue that it would let a President work fulltime for the people, always true to his convictions, whereas he now must spend part of every day and most of his second two years playing the politician and working for re-election.

Those supporting the four-years-with-re-election system maintain that it is precisely the desire to be re-elected, and the political pressures it generates, which make Presidents reasonably responsive to the needs and desires of the people.

Mr. Nixon has tried to explain his signing of the public service jobs proposal by saying that it offered "transitional" rather than "dead-end" jobs, which he claimed the measure passed by Congress last year would produce.

Most people don't see any significant difference in the jobs. They do see Presidential nominating conventions only a year away with 5.5 million Americans out of work, 370,000 Vietnam veterans pleading for jobs, and the teenagers of our great cities dangerously idle.

No President of pride wants to be rejected by the people after one term. Mr. Nixon is smart enough to know that such heavy unemployment (along with other economic woes) threatens him with just that ignominious fate.

So the pressures of politics have caused the President to hold his nose and gulp down a dose of New Deal economic medicine.

But what about this Nixon who now sounds like the best friend education ever had? Is this the man who has so angered educators that the outgoing president of the National Education Association called him "an under-achiever" and assailed him for "lack of leadership, lack of compassion, and lack of creative solutions" at the NEA convention?

Perhaps Mr. Nixon's shift on education simply reflects stronger, wiser advisers. Maybe HEW Secretary Elliot Richardson packs more clout than did his predecessor, Robert Finch. Or maybe what Finch did not have was a Finch in the White House pressing the President at close range. Or a Donald Rumsfeld doing the same.

The four-year-term advocates don't believe Richardson, Finch, Rumsfeld, or anyone else changed Richard Nixon's personal philosophy at his age of 58. They say these men might have convinced Nixon of some political realities, but that a Nixon with more than three years remaining in office and no election to worry about would have clung to his earlier view and vetoed this year's educational appropriations too.

There are, of course, many bad policies that Presidents pursue in the interest of re-election. Some maintain that the indifference of the Nixon administration to the needs of minorities is but a reflection of a planned "Southern-suburban strategy" for 1972. Yet, backers of the four-year term insist that the administration's attitude toward minorities reflects the "gut feelings" of most leaders of the administration, that it would exist just as strongly if Mr. Nixon had a six-year term, and might even be manifested in worse ways were it not for pressures from liberal and moderate Republicans who don't want to write off the minorities vote at re-election time.

Weighing the advantages and disadvantages, this observer leans to the four-years-with-re-election system. If there is as much to that pride-of-re-election syndrome as I think there is, we ought to see more of the metamorphosis of Richard Nixon in the months ahead, in both foreign and domestic affairs.

Humphrey on MIRV: A Rash Suggestion

Sen. Hubert Humphrey asked Congress Wednesday to delay funds for MIRV (Multiple Independently Targeted Re-entry Vehicle), stating that continued work on the weapons system would prejudice an arms agreement with the Soviet Union.

MIRV permits multiple warheads to be mounted atop our Minuteman missiles, greatly increasing the enemy's defense problems.

Evidently Humphrey has not done his homework regarding the comparative strategic positions of the United States and the Soviet Union. If he had, he would see the danger of his suggestion.

One of the great sleeper stories of the last few years, and one which many concerned Americans are just beginning to wake up to, involves Russia's rapid and dramatic closing of the strategic arms gap, which since World War II has been firmly in this country's favor.

Already the Soviet Union has moved significantly ahead of the United States in ballistic missile strength, the mainstay of our deterrent force. The slim lead the United States currently holds in submarine-launched missiles will be erased by 1974 as a result of Russia's high-priority submarine construction program.

The Blue Ribbon Defense Panel appointed by the President in 1969, reported last year that the balance of power had shifted dramatically in favor of the Soviet Union. The President himself, the joint chiefs of staff, the secretary of defense and a host of other officials, including members of Congress, have echoed the threat in recent speeches.

Sober words were picked by the Blue Ribbon Panel to summarize this ominous new development:

"It is not too much to say that in the 70's neither the vital interests of the U.S. nor the lives and freedoms of its citizens will be secure . . ."

In face of these facts, Senator Humphrey suggests a moratorium on MIRV development, one of the few areas where the United States holds a technological lead over the Soviets.

Many Americans share Senator Humphrey's concern for world peace and financing urgent domestic programs. But his proposal to put the United States at more of a dangerous strategic disadvantage, at a time when the scales are already tipping against us, is both rash and dangerous.

'Pentagon Papers' As Yet Untapped

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — While the uproar continues over publication of the top-secret Pentagon Papers on Vietnam, we have learned that there are a dozen or more similar reports dealing with every major U.S. foreign policy crisis since the 1950s.

They contain a wealth of fresh information of great relevance to U.S. foreign policy today, reportedly including the fact that the U.S. came perilously close to nuclear warfare during the struggle over Quemoy and Matsu islands off China between 1958 and 1960.

The documents, known as the "Critical Incident Studies," remain buried in Pentagon vaults. Their existence was known until now to only a handful of officials and the historians who prepared them.

The reports were made under the aegis of the Defense Department's Weapons System Evaluation Group, a division of the secretary's office, for the benefit of the joint chiefs of staff.

We have confirmed the existence of the studies and obtained information on their content from one former defense official who has read most of them and from another who worked on at least one of them. Both asked not to be named.

The idea was that by a meticulous, minute-by-minute analysis of the military command's handling of major crises, lessons would be learned on how to improve communications and otherwise prepare for future emergencies.

The reason the studies have been kept so secret is that they record every detail of the events under scrutiny, including the blunders, confusions and salty quotations of the highest officers in the military.

Therefore it was agreed at the outset that, although the men doing the reports were technically under the secretary of defense's office, the documents would be strictly under the control of the joint chiefs.

One historian who worked on the series of studies said the unusual secrecy agreement was necessary or the joint chiefs would never have allowed them access to the War Room and required documents.

As he told my associate Brit Hume, "You have people's careers in your hands and to do an objective job, you need access. If you didn't have confidentiality, you wouldn't have access."

The following subjects are included among the dozen or so reports:

U.S. Operations in Laos, 1959-61; several studies of the Cuban Crisis; the Berlin Crisis; the Dominican emergency of 1965; the upheaval in the Congo in 1960; the U.S. intervention in Lebanon in 1958; the Quemoy-Matsu episode between 1958 and 1960 and the Suez crisis of 1956.

Recently, one of this series of studies was made available to Congress. This is the report on the Gulf of Tonkin episode which was sent to Capitol Hill along with the full Vietnam war study.

However, there has been no public indication until now that this report was anything other than a special study rather than part of a series.

Moreover, Daniel Ellsberg, the man who says he leaked the Vietnam study to newspapers, said here last week that the joint chiefs tried frantically to keep the Tonkin study from former Defense Secretary Robert McNamara because it contained transcriptions of his phone conversations with the military command.

What's more, one of our sources said he was told by a member of the joint chiefs that if word of the existence of the studies ever got out, they would immediately be burned to prevent their embarrassing contents from becoming known.

While this might seem implausible, our source said he had no doubt of this general's sincerity.

He pointed out, however, that most of the embarrassing detail was included in appendices apart from the main body of the text. He said these could easily be held back even if the meat of the material were made public.

The Pentagon's rules for classifying documents are only crazy to the non-military mind. For example, in the personnel file of an Air Force scientist named Ken Cook, who was retired for dubious grounds, there is a sheaf marked "For Official Use Only, Confidential Handling Required."

One of these highly secret documents is a quotation from Spanish philosopher George Santayana which has been printed around the world. Cook had sent it to his boss.

The printed quotation which the Pentagon sought to classify out of existence reads, "Those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it."

The security stamp would be merely ridiculous if it were not also symbolic. For Santayana, a great modern philosopher, had many of his books banned by totalitarian regimes.

Personal Slants

By DOUG KNEIBERT

I had a jolly good chat a few days ago with a foreign visitor to Sedalia, and a colleague in the great business of newspapers.

Graham Gardner is a Londoner, and chief pressman on The Times of London, England's greatest and best-known newspaper. Graham, his wife and three children have been visiting here for about three weeks, staying with Dr. and Mrs. Elliot Braverman. Mrs. Braverman is Graham's sister-in-law.

Like most vacationing newspaper types, Graham couldn't resist poking his nose into somebody else's plant. He got the tour, an explanation of offset printing and the way we "colonials" put out papers.

Of course there are a few differences between The Democrat-Capital and The Times. Take circulation for instance. The Times edges us out by about 735,000 copies.

But then again they've been at it longer. For more than a century The Times has been the Establishment voice in Britain. It used to be known as "The Thunderer" because of its Mount Olympus-type influence in British politics and foreign policy.

Typographically it was unique among the world's great newspapers, printing classified ads, mainly personals, on the entire front page. This changed several years ago when Lord Thomson bought The Times and gave it a more conventional appearance.

But today Fleet Street (where all of London's great papers are located) is in trouble, and speculation is that a few voices will be stilled before stability is restored.

The Times, England's mouthpiece when the sun never set on the British Empire, is one of the papers that has fallen upon hard times. Some observers wonder whether the grand old girl will survive.

We share Graham's hope that she does. Rolls Royce and the Clyde Shipyards might well go under, but if The Times . . . well that's just bloody well unthinkable.

What is Graham's strongest impression of Sedalia? "It's the friendliness of the people . . . this has really surprised me," he said. Of course he came here from New York City, and against New Yorkers the followers of Attila the Hun would seem friendly. (No slur against Sedalia intended.)

It has always struck me as a grave injustice to America that so many foreigners get their first and perhaps only exposure to this country in New York, and tend to equate New Yorkers with Americans.

Our visitor has promised to send me some current copies of various London papers, which I would dearly love to see. Have a nice trip home, Graham, and give our best to The Times.

Speaking of England, I find out that Sedalia has made the news in Maidstone, a Kentish village about 40 miles southeast of London.

M. A. Gauldin of Marshall has sent me a clipping from the Maidstone newspaper, reprinting our famous "man bites dog" item of a few weeks back.

Not long ago I also saw a clipping from a Singapore newspaper reprinting a Sedalia item. So be careful what you do out there — the world is watching.

Family Loses Pet Due to 'Barking'

Dear Ann Landers: Recently we went away on a trip and left our beloved little terrier in a kennel for five days. The morning of the sixth day my husband went to get him. The owner checked the kennel, returned and said, "I'm sorry. The dog is dead." He had no idea what had happened but promised to have an autopsy performed and let us know.

The following day the veterinarian at the animal hospital drew a diagram of the dog's throat and explained that he had apparently "barked himself to death."

I have never heard of such a thing and wonder if perhaps they invented this story to cover up for their neglect. Will you please check this out and let me know the truth? — L. C. R.

Dear L. C. R.: A veterinarian of the Lake Shore Animal Hospital and Dr. Harry Booth, a member of the Grievance Committee for the Chicago Veterinary Medicine Association both said it is virtually impossible for a dog to bark himself to death. The dog may have worked himself into a state of near hysteria, which could bring on a heart attack. Or perhaps the dog barked a great deal and became hyperventilated and went into shock.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you printed a poem in your column called "Saints and Sinners." You said the author's name was Veda Ponikvar of Chisom, Minnesota.

It might interest you to know that you are in error. That poem was written over 30 years ago by a prisoner in the Federal Reformatory in Chillicothe, Ohio. The poem has been quoted frequently by people in the correctional field as an expression of our feelings. I feel it is only fair that we keep the record straight. Sincerely, — Commissioner Robert J. Wright, County of Westchester Dept. of Correction, Valhalla, New York.

Dear Commissioner: When I received your letter I wrote to Veda Ponikvar and asked if she was actually the author of the poem "Saints and Sinners," as stated by Ludwig Andolsek of Washington, D.C. (He had sent the poem on to me.) Her reply appears below:

Dear Ann Landers: Thank you for your letter inquiring about the authorship of "Saints and Sinners" which appeared in your column recently.

I wrote the original poem in 1937 and called it "When The Saints and Sinners Come Marching In." I have revised the poem a number of times to suit particular occasions. I used the poem frequently during the first campaign of Congressman John Blatnik when he ran from this district in 1948. It became part of the Iron Range political lore.

Check with Congressman Blatnik's office for verification. Sincerely, — Veda Ponikvar.

My reply: Dear Veda: I didn't have to check with Congressman Blatnik's office. I checked with Congressman Blatnik. John has been a close friend of mine for 20 years. He said, "Veda is right!" Thanks very much. — Ann Landers.

Dear Ann Landers: Two years ago I married and moved a long way from family and friends. My husband does not enjoy my family's company. They are not his social or educational equals and I know it. I want to go home for a two-week visit but he refuses to spend his vacation that way and I can't blame him. I've heard when a man is left alone he usually plays around. Should I risk it? — Home Sick.

Dear H.S.: A man who is inclined to play around will play around — and it doesn't matter if the wife is in town or not. Go home and enjoy yourself.

In Missouri

Job Situation Is Dim

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., (AP) — Jobs were harder to find in Missouri last year and more may be out of work in the months ahead, according to a grim forecast apparent to the state Division of Employment Security.

"The employment picture in the immediate future doesn't look good to us and we are concerned," Herman Julien, director of the state Division of Employment Security, told The Associated Press Thursday.

Julien said they anticipated some 3,000 auto workers will be laid off by General Motors of Kansas City on July 27. Some of those layoffs he expects to be permanent. He added concern about the current strike by Communication Workers at Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. plants and predicted walkout by railroad workers as evidence of the bleak job forecast.

Julien expects total unemployment figures for June to top May's figures showing about 6 per cent of Missouri's workers were out of jobs last month. July will probably top that, he said.

Earlier, Julien released a year-end report which showed a record $83 million-plus was collected by Missourians in unemployment insurance benefits during the fiscal period ended June 30, 1971. The figure is highest in the 35-year history of the state unemployment insurance system, he said. "As benefits went up—our placements were down," Julien said, indicating the division put fewer workers back on payrolls between July 1, 1970 and June 30, 1971 than in prior years.

He said only 79,480 got jobs through placements in the last fiscal year compared with 92,957 in fiscal 1969-70.

Julien said Missouri's economy got $176 million added through benefits received under the unemployment insurance plan the last three years. He said benefit payments had increased 136 per cent in that period.

Julien called payments to unemployed "high velocity dollars." He said they go immediately into the economy since they are used to buy food, pay utility bills and rent.

A balance of $239.8 million remained in Missouri's unemployment insurance fund at the close of the fiscal year.

Draft Lottery Set in August

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Selective Service System says the 1972 draft lottery, postponed once because of congressional delay in extending the draft act, will be held next month—law or no law.

"We think it's important to have the lottery because the kids are anxious to know what their numbers are," a Selective Service spokesman said Thursday. "We don't know when Congress is going to act and that's why we're going ahead with it."

Aug. 5 tentatively has been set for the lottery to determine the order in which young men will be drafted into the Army in 1972.

Originally scheduled for July 1, the lottery was postponed after House-Senate conferees deadlocked over legislation to extend the draft act two years.

The stalemate is over an amendment calling for a U.S. pullout from Vietnam within nine months after Hanoi agrees to release American prisoners of war.

At the time the deadlock developed, a Selective Service spokesman said Draft Director Curtis Tarr could have held the lottery as scheduled but did not want to appear acting without approval from Congress.

Tarr now apparently has decided to go ahead, since there are indications Congress may not reach a compromise until the fall.

A spokesman said it wouldn't be fair to wait any longer for the thousands of young men who want to make plans with a new school year drawing near.

Although Selective Service will go ahead with the lottery, the June 30 expiration of the draft act has forced a delay in calling up 16,000 men requested by the Defense Department for the Army in July and August.

However, the 500,000 men who were deferred when the old law was in effect but are otherwise eligible could be drafted, but there has been no decision on this by the Nixon administration.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird has said he is "not in favor of using such an unfair method to select the people for the July and August call."

Desegregation Fund Snag Is Created By Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's proposal to help schools meet desegregation costs has been caught in a new snag by efforts in the House Education and Labor Committee to expand it into a general school-aid bill.

The bill was on the verge of approval by a subcommittee Thursday when Rep. William D. Ford, D-Mich., offered a substitute to make it part of a $6.8 billion general aid measure.

Although it appeared Ford had enough votes to have his bill approved, the subcommittee adjourned without acting in order to give members more time to study it. Chairman Roman C. Pucinski, D-Ill., said he will try to get a vote early next week.

Rep. Albert H. Quie of Minnesota, senior Republican on the committee, bitterly opposed the Ford bill and accused the Democrats of using it to try to kill the desegregation proposal.

Nixon asked Congress more than a year ago for $1.5 billion in emergency desegregation aid but the request has been involved in controversy in both the House and Senate ever since.

The Senate passed a much broader version than Nixon requested last April, and after much prodding by the administration Pucinski's subcommittee took it up last week.

The subcommittee had tentatively approved a narrower version than the Senate bill and only a final vote on the measure was needed when Ford offered his substitute.

Ford's bill would include all provisions of the desegregation measure as approved by the subcommittee. But it would add $5.3 billion in general aid to help every school district in the country improve the quality of education.

The money authorized by the Ford bill would supplement existing elementary and secondary school aid, which now totals about $3 billion.

Ford picked up powerful support for his bill from Rep. Edith Green, D-Ore., ranking committee Democrat and one of the most influential House members on education matters.

Mrs. Green called the administration bill "a superficial approach" to the problem and said it would result mainly in enriching bus companies through transportation of pupils to achieve court-ordered desegregation.

Mine Dump Construction Is Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — Construction of a dump for radioactive wastes in old salt mines near Lyons, Kan., was approved Thursday by the House despite the opposition of the Kansas congressional delegation and Gov. Robert Docking.

The House voted 206 to 162 against eliminating a $3.5 million authorization requested by the Atomic Energy Commission.

The amendment to delete the project was offered by Rep. Joe Skubitz, R-Kan.

Money for the project will come up later in an appropriation bill.

Gov. Docking issued a statement in Topeka promising to continue the fight.

Rep. Bill Roy, D-Kan., said: "We will work now to stop appropriation of the money which has been authorized for the purchase of this land. I think we have a good chance of winning this yet."

Skubitz said the state will go to court if necessary.

Kansas officials oppose the project on the grounds that laboratory tests to determine the hazards have not been completed.

"Kansas doesn't have faith in the Atomic Energy Commission or trust its promises; neither do I," Skubitz told the House.

Roy said it is vital that further studies be made on the project before the AEC continues with its plans.

Rationing Water As Big Drought Hits Oklahoma

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Oklahoma's week-long heat wave has begun to take its toll on city water supplies with one city already out of water and three more on rationing.

Eldorado, in southwestern Jackson County reported it went dry Thursday when residents refused to stop watering lawns. The temperature hit 112 during the week.

Beaver, Clinton, and Frederick went on rationing to avoid running out of water.

Eldorado Water Superintendent Harold Conwell blamed the shortage on uncooperative residents.

"We can't get cooperation from local residents on watering their yards," he said. "We are going to have to go along like we are until these diehards learn they can't water their yards or they will starve."

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis and Kansas City joined forces Thursday to get part of a proposed $475 state highway bond issue for urban mass transit systems.

Mayors A. J. Cervantes of St. Louis and Charles Wheeler of Kansas City, Supervisor Lawrence K. Roos of St. Louis County and Presiding Judge George Lehr of Jackson County announced the combined effort.

They said they will testify before the Missouri Highway Commission at Jefferson City, Aug. 12, in support of their position.

"It is time that the state of Missouri recognizes the needs of its major urban areas. We feel it is essential that the state participate in meeting the transportation needs of its urban citizens," the officials said in a joint statement.

Schaffner Reply Draws Bond Fire

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., (AP) — A spokesman for state Auditor Christopher (Kit) Bond said Thursday the Department of Revenue's critical reply to an audit of the Sales Tax Division of the Department of Revenue is "misleading and erroneous."

Hugh A. Sprague, deputy for external affairs in the state auditor's office, said the reply failed to refute the findings and recommendations in the audit.

The auditor's report released Wednesday, contained 30 recommendations for improved procedures in the sales tax division and criticized such things as internal management of sales tax records and the failure to use all available enforcement measures to insure the state its share of sales tax revenues.

James E. Schaffner, director of revenue, said Thursday in a 15-page reply that the report showed the Department of Revenue was in "very good condition."

He said most of the auditor's criticism had to do with "very minor items" in the department's operation.

As an illustration of how well the department is performing its job, Schaffner said, "the auditor shows that only approximately $200,000 out of $344 million was not collected by the department in 1970.

Schaffner concluded the auditor found no problems in the sales tax unit other than "procedures which he feels are not what he would like to see."

"Procedures are the backbone of any management operation," Sprague said. "If procedures aren't established and followed there is no way to determine whether the operation is being conducted properly."

Sprague said Schaffner's reply "seriously misrepresents the auditor's report by implying that 99.95 per cent of all sales-use tax money due the state is being collected."

"The big loss in state revenue is not collection of recorded taxes due but in failure to collect millions of dollars of unrecorded collections. This is due to lack of adequate procedures and controls in the Department of Revenue."

Two-Hitter For Sam, But . . .

...Royals Win, 1-0

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Sudden Sam McDowell is rapidly gaining a reputation as Sad Sam McDowell.

Twice during the past week the Cleveland Indians left-hander has had things happen to him that would make any pitcher sad.

McDowell was selected to the American League All-Star squad in Detroit Tuesday night. Cleveland Manager Alvin Dark had Sam scratched because he didn't know whether McDowell's ailing left shoulder had healed sufficiently.

McDowell pitched one of his best games of the season if not the best Thursday night and lost to the Kansas City Royals

1-0. He tossed a two-hitter and at one stage retired 11 Royals in succession.

Sam sat in front of his cubicle after the game, his head bowed.

"I lose a lot of them like that," McDowell moaned. "In fact, lately that's all we've been doing...losing the close ones."

Asked about his shoulder, McDowell raised his head and replied:

"What about it? It's fine. It didn't bother me one bit, and it didn't bother me last Saturday."

He lost to Baltimore last Saturday 11-3. McDowell gave up only two singles Thursday night, one to Paul Schaal in the first and the other to Lou Piniella in the sixth, the latter scoring pitcher Dick Drago with the winning run.

"The pitch in the first hung up in the air long enough for somebody to hit it," McDowell said. "Piniella's hit was on a fast ball, an inside pitch that slumped and broke back over the plate."

"But it wasn't Piniella's hit that beat me. It was that lead-off walk to Drago."

After Drago walked, Fred Patek sacrificed him to second before Schaal lined out. After Cookie Rojas walked, Piniella drilled a single to center.

That was the ball game although it took four Kansas City double plays, the last a real weird one that ended the game, to give Drago his 10th victory against five losses and his fourth shutout in his last eight starts. Drago gave up eight hits.

Graig Nettles doubled with one out in the ninth. Chris Chambliss walked, and Roy Foster lined to Piniella. Chambliss had to return to first and failed to touch second en route and was called out.

Dark said McDowell pitched "a lot better against Kansas City than he did last Saturday. It's tough to tell if he threw as well tonight as he has all year."

Have-Nots Dominating Western Open Tourney

CHICAGO (AP) — Golf's have-nots, as far as PGA victories this year are concerned, are dominating the Western Open Golf Tournament and if Lee Trevino doesn't make the cut after Friday's second round, the old tourney itself could become a have-not.

The streaking Trevino, winner of the U.S. Canadian and British Opens within the last month, found his iron shots flying spinlessly from the long fairway grass and struggled over the storied Olympia Fields course in three-over-par 74 Thursday.

The effervescent Mexican-American, followed by most of the 11,000 galleryites, was eight strokes off the pace set by 35-year-old Bruce Crampton.

The Aussie veteran of the tour blazed in with a 66, one over the competitive course record, consuming only 26 putts. This included 11 one-putt greens and a remarkable string of sinking from 50, 35, 60, 14 and 12 feet before missing two successive four-footers.

"It's just fate when those long ones drop," said Crampton, whose last victory was the $250,000 Westchester Open last year. "But that's golf, and it takes a few like that to win a tournament. I'm in front, and I'm told the only way to win is to get in front and improve your position."

Looking over Crampton's shoulder with 67 were Tommy Aaron who has slowed his swing after missing two cuts in the last three weeks; Dale Douglass with 68 and a group at 69—Dick Lotz, Chuck Montalbano Bobby Greendood, Gay Brewer, Phil Rodgers and Bobby Brue.

Trevino Keeping Humor

CHICAGO (AP) — "Discouraged? Hell no, I'm not discouraged. With the things that have happened to me in the last few weeks, they could come out and break my clubs and I'd be standing there laughing."

Lee Trevino was talking about a three-over-par 74 in the first round of the $150,000 Western Open Golf Tournament Thursday that left him well back in the field.

"Actually, 74 is about as bad as I could have shot," said the bubbly, breezy Mexican-American who vaulted to dominant position in professional golf with the completion of an unprecedented sweep of the United States, Canadian and British Open championships only last Saturday.

"I hit the ball exactly where I wanted to hit it," Trevino said. "But these greens are about five times as fast as last week (in the British Open at Royal Birkdale). I just kept running it right by the hole."

Trevino admitted there may be a little extra pressure on him this week, but it's not because of his British Open triumph last week.

Country Club Team Is Second In Match Series

(Democrat-Capital Service)

FULTON — Despite a third place finish in the final inter-city golf tournament of the year here Thursday, the Sedalia Country Club golf team still managed to finish second in final inter-city golf competition.

Columbia again won Thursday's match, collecting 305½ points. Host Fulton was second with 277½, followed by the locals with 253 and Jefferson City, 244.

Low scorers for Sedalia Thursday were J. W. Buchanan and Dr. C. W. Kateman, both shooting a 77.

High point players for the Country Club were Ned Postels and C. C. De Lozier, each with 30½ points.

Final standings in the four match season were: 1 — Columbia, 1191; 2 — Sedalia 1077½; 3 — Fulton 1032½; 4 — Jefferson City, 1019.

Sand Storm
Lee Trevino of El Paso, Tex., blasts out of a sand trap by the 18th green in the first round of the Western Open Thursday at Olympia Fields, Ill. He shot a par on the 18th, but finished the day with a three-over-par 74. (UPI)

SHAVING STROKES

by Frank Beard

5-Losing Eight Strokes

I'm sure that a careful analysis of your scores would show that you lose strokes mostly from 50 yards on in to the hole. People often refuse to accept this, but invariably it's true.

For our first lesson in the short game, let's start with that 50-yard shot. The average player will reach for a pitching wedge. He's heard that the wedge is the easiest club to hit. It is—but only once you master it the way the pros do. It probably will be the hardest for you.

If you have a clear shot to the green, take a club you feel comfortable with. The best percentage shot for you might well be a pitch-and-run with a 6-iron. That's the one I'd usually recommend.

I See You!!!

Montreal Expos' catcher John Boccabella, left, seems to be playing games with Montreal pitcher Bill Stoneman in the second game of Thursday's doubleheader with the Cardinals in St. Louis. Actually, Boccabella is helping Stoneman locate a wandering contact lens. They finally required the trainer's services. (UPI)

Stoneman Is Tough

Cardinals in Split

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bill Stoneman refuses to set a 20-goal target during the current National League season but acknowledges he's a different pitcher than in 1970.

"The big thing is I'm finally learning to use what I've got," the 5-foot-10, 170-pound right-hander said after stopping the St. Louis Cardinals 6-4 in the second half of a doubleheader Thursday night.

"What you've got won't do you any good unless you know how to use," added Stoneman, whose route-going nine-hitter was his 11th victory against nine defeats. "I've got the same stuff I had two years ago," the 27-year-old sinker ball specialist said. "A lot of it can be attributed to experience."

Stoneman, who in 1969 authored a no-hitter, worked out of two jams to stymie the Cardinals after Steve Carlton's seven-hitter won for St. Louis 7-3 in the opener.

A four-run fourth inning roided Stoneman all the margin he needed, although the Cardinals closed to 5-4 before submitting.

The dark-haired Montreal pitcher's error permitted St. Louis its third run and a walk to Dal Maxvill aided in the scoring of the fourth.

But Stoneman, who fanned Lou Brock three times, escaped threats after the Cardinals put their first two batters on base in both the fourth and seventh innings.

In the latter instances Matty Alou singled and Ted Simmons doubled before Stoneman bore down to retire Joe Torre, Joe Hague and Jose Cruz in order.

"He's a great competitor; that's typical of him getting men on second and third or first and second with nobody out and giving them nothing," Montreal manager Gene Mauch said.

"If he pitched as well to stay out of trouble as he does to get out of trouble he'd never be in trouble," Mauch added. "He seems to do his best pitching after he gets in trouble."

Montreal's victory snapped a four-game skid and halted a Cardinals win string at five. It was the Expos' first success in six games this season with St. Louis.

Torre's three RBI and three hits apiece by the spray-hitting Alou and Simmons carried the Cardinals to the first-game triumph.

Carlton (13-5) breezed despite being tapped for Stan Swanson's first major league home run with a teammate aboard in the fourth.

Benefit Game Set Saturday

The Annual Ban Johnson — Senior Babe Ruth All Star benefit game will be played Saturday at 8 p.m. at Liberty Park, according to Chuck Huddleston, All Star manager.

Proceeds from the game will help fund expenses for both the Ban Johnson team and the Senior Babe Ruth league, as well as providing good game experience for the All Stars, Huddleston said.

Feuding Bosox Fix Woe; Rip Apart Twins Instead

By BERT ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Sports Writer

Carl Yastrzemski and Billy Conigliaro, the feuding Boston outfielders, buried the hatchet, then Rico Petrocelli went out and buried the Minnesota Twins. Petrocelli, upset by a close pitch thrown by Minnesota's Stan Williams in the 13th inning, crashed the next delivery by the Twins' right-hander into the left field screen for a three-run homer, powering the Red Sox to a 3-0 victory Thursday night.

Elsewhere in the American League, Oakland outslugged Detroit 8-7; Baltimore topped California 4-3; Kansas City blanked Cleveland 1-0; Washington trounced Chicago 8-3; and Milwaukee nipped New York 1-0.

The Boston-Minnesota game was one of the longest scoreless battles in the Red Sox' Fenway Park, one of the smallest fields in the majors. After the contest, the Red Sox were more eager to talk about the length of the game rather than the publicized dissension which had wracked the club for the past week.

Conigliaro had touched off the strife. He reacted to the retirement of his brother, Tony, by accusing Yastrzemski for Tony's trade to California last October. Billy also accused Yastrzemski, Reggie Smith and equipment manager Don Fitzpatrick of being part of a conspiracy, with a great deal to say about the running of the team. Yastrzemski denied the charges, and Smith called Billy a "quitter," saying he never again wanted to play with the younger Conigliaro.

Yastrzemski and Billy patched up their differences at a news conference Wednesday. Smith was not at the meeting.

Thursday night, all three were in the same outfield. And it was Smith who started the winning rally, working Williams for a two-out walk. He stole second and Yastrzemski was intentionally walked, before Petrocelli drilled Williams' 1-2 pitch for his 15th homer of the season.

The first two pitches to Petrocelli were strikes, then Williams fired the ball over his head, just missing his batting helmet. "I was ready for anything, then," said the slugging Boston shortstop.

Boston starter Luis Tiant duelled Minnesota's Jim Perry for the first 10 innings, the Red Sox' right-hander scattering 10 hits and the Twin's veteran allowing only three hits. Bill Lee held Minnesota hitless for the final three innings and earned the victory, raising his record to 8-2.

Oakland, leading the American League West by 11½ games, rallied for three runs in the bottom of the ninth to beat Detroit. Rick Monday's homer with one out brought the A's to within 7-6. Then, with two out, Mike Epstein walked and pinch runner John Odom scored the tying run on Dave Duncan's double. Duncan raced home with the winner on Dick Green's single.

Pat Dobson, who pitched and won Baltimore's last game Sunday, capped a decisive two-run, tie-breaking rally in the seventh with a run-producing single to register his eighth consecutive victory. Dobson's hit followed singles by Dave Johnson and Mark Belanger, and a run-scoring wild pitch by Andy Messersmith as the Orioles snapped a 2-2 deadlock. Dobson, 11-4, scattered nine hits. The victory left Baltimore 5½ games ahead of Boston in the AL East.

Dave Nelson, who had opened the bottom of the first with his first homer of the season, capped a six-run Washington sixth with a two-run single against the White Sox. It was the Senator's first victory in seven games against Chicago this season.

Race to First

Chris Cannizzaro of the Chicago Cubs (43) runs toward first base as Philadelphia Phillies' first baseman Daron Johnson (left) slides with the ball in the fourth inning at Chicago's Wrigley Field Thursday. Johnson beat Cannizzaro to the bag for the out after picking up the sacrifice bunt. Phillies second baseman Terry Harmon came over to cover first (right). The Cubs won, 7-6.

Believes Old Saying

Headache For Murtaugh

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

"The game's not over till the last man is out."

Nobody knows just who first coined that famous remark about the grand, old game of baseball. But manager Danny Murtaugh believes it. Oh, does he ever believe it.

Murtaugh watched his Pittsburgh Pirates work their way dangerously close to their last out three times Thursday night, only to bounce back each time against San Diego. The Pirates eventually beat the Padres 4-3 with Roberto Clemente's 17th inning home run ending the longest game of the National League season.

Elsewhere in the NL, Thursday, Los Angeles shut out Atlanta 6-0, New York defeated Houston 9-4, Chicago edged Philadelphia 7-6, Cincinnati shaded San Francisco 2-1 and St. Louis split a doubleheader with Montreal, winning 7-3 and then losing 6-4.

The Pirates simply refused to give up against the Padres and as a result, stretched their winning streak to seven games. Forgive Murtaugh if there were a couple of moments when he figured the streak was over.

San Diego nursed a 1-0 lead into the ninth inning and the way starter Dave Roberts was pitching, it looked like enough. But the Pirates scratched out the tying run on a walk, a bouncing single by Jose Pagan and Gene Alley's sacrifice fly.

Roberts, who had struck out slugger Willie Stargell four times, left in the 10th and three innings later, Stargell got even.

The Padres had taken the lead in the top of the 13th on a pinch homer by Ivan Murrell. Reliever Al Severinsen struck out the first two batters in the bottom half of the inning and that left only Stargell.

The big slugger walloped his 31st homer over the wall, tying the game again. In the 16th, the Padres tried again, pushing across the tie-breaking run again, this time on a wild pitch.

But again, the Pirates refused to fold. This time there was only one out in the bottom half of the inning when Richie Hebner tagged his 14th homer of the year, tying it again.

If by now the Padres' spirit was broken, they could hardly be blamed. Clemente then gave them a mercifully quick finish, hammering a one-out homer in the 17th to end the 4-hour, 12-minute marathon.

Los Angeles chopped a game off San Francisco's West Division lead, blanking Atlanta while the Giants were dropping a tough one in Cincinnati.

The Dodgers used home runs by Jim Lefebvre, Willie Davis and Richie Allen for four runs and that was plenty for Claude Osteen, who hurled a six-hitter Davis also contributed a single and a triple to LA's attack.

Tony Perez ripped his 15th homer of the year and third in the last two games to give the Reds their fifth straight victory and beat San Francisco. Perez shot broke a 1-1 tie with two out in the bottom of the ninth inning. Lee May's 24th homer accounted for Cincinnati's other run.

The Mets spotted Houston as early 4-0 lead but bounced back to overtake the Astros. Cleon Jones' two-run homer gave New York the lead in the seventh and Tug McGraw pitched six shut out innings in relief to earn the victory.

Joe Pepitone's leadoff homer touched off a six-run Chicago explosion and the Cubs roared from behind to ship Philadelphia.

Chicago was trailing 6-1 in the sixth inning when Pepitone homered. Then Don Kessinger and Glenn Beckert contributed a couple of triples as the Cubs rallied.

The season's two no-hit pitchers, Philadelphia's Rick Wise and Ken Holtzman of the Cubs, were the opposing starters but neither lasted past the fourth inning.

Matty Alou and Ted Simmons cracked three hits each and Joe Torre drove in three runs with a pair of singles as St. Louis whacked Montreal in the first game of their doubleheader.

'Big Red' Tickets Are Going Briskly

(Democrat-Capital Service)

ST. LOUIS — A record season ticket sale — 40,728 — was announced this week by the Football Cardinals for 1971.

In making the announcement, William V. Bidwill, Cardinal vice president, said, "We're delighted with the upsurge of interest. Looking past the disappointment of 1970, ahead to the bright picture of 1971, we believe that our fans will see the Big Red field a team they will be proud to support."

The total of 40,728 is a substantial increase — 2,546 — over 1970 when the figure dipped to 38,182. Prior to last year, the season totals had climbed steadily five years in a row, reaching a high point of 40,308 in 1969.

Sedalia Is Still on Top Despite Thursday Loss

(Democrat-Capital Service)

NEW FRANKLIN — A three-run New Franklin rally in the bottom of the ninth inning here Thursday evening was enough for victory over the Sedalia Ban Johnson Chiefs, 7-6.

Leading 6-4 going into the inning, the locals behind the pitching of Terry Hudson, appeared to be on the way to their ninth win of the year, but a couple of base hits, combined with mental lapses on defense, allowed three runs to cross the plate, including the winning run which was scored on a squeeze play.

Charlie Nelkersan picked up the late inning victory for New Franklin against Hudson, who had to go all the way since no other hurlers were available for Sedalia.

Salty Schumaker's crew

pecked away in the early going to keep a relatively comfortable lead against their hosts, scoring one run in the first, two in the second, one in the third and two in the sixth.

Dave Pirtle was one of the bright spots for Sedalia during the evening, swinging at a 4-for-4 clip at the plate.

The Chiefs are now 8-6 for the season, and still hold a half-game lead in the west playing next against Centralia at 8 p.m. Sunday at Liberty Park. New Franklin picked up its seven win against six defeats.

In other Central Missouri Ban Johnson League activity, Columbia handled Centralia, 6-2; Jefferson City topped Tipton 3-0 and Marshall edged Boonville, 3-2.

In the Columbia-Centralia game, pitching standout Ray

Ash fanned 12 batters in six innings and Tim Drennon supplied two rbi's with timely hitting. Three of Columbia's runs, however, scored on passed balls.

Sedalia still retains its narrow margin in the western division of Ban Johnson play, thanks to the loss by Boonville at the hands of Marshall. Just one-half game back, however, are New Franklin and Boonville, as the BJ race for the west grows even tighter.

Rod, Gun Standings Are Tight

Here are the Sedalia Rod and Gun Club Summer League standings through Tuesday:

1 — Third National Bank, 831; 2 — Tucker DX, 830; 3 — (tie) Bill & Marcia's Cafe and Standard Oil Fertilizer, 821; 4 — Osage Thrift Shop, 813; 5 — S & M, 811; 6 — (tie) Trojan See and Ray's Skelly Service, 810; 7 — State Fair Rest, 809; 8 — Farmers & Merchants Bank, 806; 9 — (tie) Fitzwilliams and LeRoy's Steak House, 804; 10 — Turner's Sheet Metal, 800.

High team scores: State Fair Rest, 106 x 125; Third National Bank, 100 x 125.

High individual scores: Dick Cole, 25 x 25; Paul Brownfield, 25 x 25; David Deve, 24 x 25; Jim Hamilton, 24 x 25; Larry Moore, 24 x 25; John Rose, 24 x 25.

the Jets' fullback to miss 11 games.

Tom Goode of the Baltimore Colts decided to retire after nine years in the pro football wars. The 32-year-old center spent only half a season with the Colts after being picked off waivers from Miami but he climaxed his career by snapping the ball Jim O'Brien kicked for the winning field goal in Super Bowl V.

The Philadelphia Eagles suffered a shock when quarterback Rick Arrington injured his left knee while working out from the tight end slot in a passing drill. He was hurt in a collision with two defensive backs. He was taken to a hospital for a full examination of the injury.

Lakes from the San Francisco 49ers. Lakes is a 10-year veteran of the NFL and has started for the 49ers for the past eight seasons.

San Francisco gets a high future draft choice in return for Lakes.

Elsewhere in the NFL training camps, rookie hopefuls continued going through their paces under the scrutiny of the coaches, and veterans worked at testing old injuries which could spell the difference in their readiness for the coming season.

One veteran, Matt Snell of the New York Jets, reported to the team's Long Island camp to work on the flexibility of his Achilles tendon. The rupture of the muscle last season caused sing yards with 7,887 yards. In his final collegiate performance with the Indians he led them to a 27-17 victory over Ohio State in the Rose Bowl.

The question of contracts also came up on the West Coast where running back Mike Garrett said he wants more than the San Diego Chargers want to give him. The former Heisman Trophy winner said he is ready to play this season but he wants to get paid like a valuable running back should.

Sid Gillman, Chargers' general manager, said he wasn't worried too much about Garrett because the player is still bound by the option clause in his contract.

Patriots Sign Jim Plunkett

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The National Football League season is still two months away but the New England Patriots already have recorded their first victory—the signing of Jim Plunkett, Stanford's Heisman Trophy-winning quarterback.

Plunkett came to terms with the Patriots and the signing took place in Chicago where he is preparing for the College All-Stars game against the Baltimore Colts. The contract, however, was announced by Pats' General Manager Upton Bell at the team's training camp at Amherst, Mass.

Bell said the pact was for more than one year but he did not disclose any other details.

The 6-3, 210-pound quarterback set NCAA records in pas-

"These JACOBY MODERN light raises are for the birds," grunted South. "I had 17 high-card points and a solid six-card suit. You raised me to three and I couldn't make my contract."

"Couldn't is not the correct wording," replied North. "As a matter of fact my hand was too good. Take away my queen of hearts and even you would not have managed to get set."

South had not bothered to use the code word "ARCH" at trick one. A Count of winners and losers would have shown him that with both the heart and diamond finesses wrong he would only score nine tricks if he tried the luxury of a heart finesse.

How could he make the hand? By refusing the heart finesse!

South did play the queen of hearts. East took the king and led back the queen of clubs. Later on South lost two clubs and a diamond.

Make that queen of hearts in dummy a small heart. South would rise with the ace since there would be no temptation. He would cash his ace and king of trumps and lead the queen of diamonds for a finesse. East would win with his king, cash the king of hearts and shift to a club, but it would be too late to get two club tricks. South would win the trick; play his good jack of diamonds enter dummy with the jack of trumps and discard one losing club on the diamond ace.

New Red China-U.S. Era Possible

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's Peking trip announcement brings the United States and Red China to the verge of diplomatic relations in an historic move that will have repercussions from the United Nations to Vietnam.

Premier Chou En-lai's invitation to the U.S. chief of state, and the President's acceptance, in itself raises Washington-Peking dealings overnight from a gradual thaw to the brink of formal relations for the first time since the Communists took over the Asian mainland in 1949.

The get-together of the leaders of the two great powers, in turn, will send waves across a broad international pattern with a kaleidoscope of consequences.

A prime issue for the United States is settlement of the Vietnam war. Peking in the past has been Hanoi's most militant backer among major Communist powers.

More recently Peking has shown signs of easing its stand. An Australian Labor party leader quoted Chou Wednesday as saying China would be willing to take part in a Geneva-type conference on Indochina.

During his trip, and in contacts preceding it, Nixon will have an opportunity to take up the Southeast Asia peace question with the Chinese.

At the United Nations, the Nixon announcement spurs chances for Red China's entry as early as this fall. Peking seemed assured of entry sooner or later, but many had expected the time would not come before 1972.

A major stumbling block remains: What happens to Taiwan at the United Nations?

The Nixon administration has made plain it does not want its Taiwan ally to be ousted from the world body as a price for seating Peking. Yet both the Nationalist and Communist regimes claim they are the sole representatives of China, and so should have the Chinese seat in the Security Council and General Assembly.

U.S. relations with Taiwan, already frayed by Nixon's warm-up moves toward the Communists, are likely to suffer further. The Chiang government quickly lodged a stiff protest when it heard of Nixon's announcement.

From Peking's standpoint, the U.S. 7th Fleet's defense of Taiwan is a major issue. Washington has stood by its defense commitment to Taiwan, and Red China in past talks at Warsaw has refused to take up other matters because of this.

The Nixon visit also will have its impact on the deep rivalry between Peking and Moscow. Each of the Communist super-states has accused the other in the past of consorting with the "capitalist imperialist" United States.

test when it heard of Nixon's announcement.

While most of America's Asian allies say they approve of Nixon's venture, their enthusiasm is likely to be tempered by some uneasiness about their own positions amid the shifting pattern between the two big powers.

When Nixon said "there can be no stable and enduring peace without the participation of the Peoples Republic of China and its 750 million people," he also may have had in mind the possibility of including China in future disarmament discussions.

Peking, a nuclear power, is a party to neither the limited nuclear test ban nor the nuclear nonproliferation treaty, nor does it attend the continuing international disarmament conference at Geneva.

U.S. strategists have long held any effective general disarmament agreement must include mainland China.

possible to piece together outlines of the clandestine trip.

On the morning of July 9 it was announced in Pakistan Kissinger had become ill with stomach problems.

He canceled a formal dinner with President Agha Yahya Khan scheduled for that evening and was reported to have gone to the Nathiagali Hill Station little more than 50 miles from Rawalpindi to recover.

However, Kissinger flew from Rawalpindi in his own large jet and Asian diplomats say the hill station cannot receive such large planes. Thus, they indicated, Kissinger left directly for Peking.

Officials here feel only Yahya knew of the trip.

From the 9th to the 11th, a Sunday, Kissinger was reported in the Pakistani mountains. It was announced Saturday he was staying an extra day in Pakistan because of his illness.

In truth, that extra day was spent still in Peking.

Kissinger was next reported to have resumed his schedule late Sunday, flying to Paris for a stopover visit with the American peace-talk delegation. He then returned to the United States for intensive talks with Nixon.

The extreme secrecy marking the China visit carried over until 10:30 p.m. EDT Thursday when Nixon went on the air to tell the nation: "Premier Chou En-lai and Dr. Henry Kissinger, President Nixon's assistant for national security affairs, held talks in Peking from July 9 to 11, 1971."

Not even the United States' best friends knew until moments before. Speculation among senior British officials at the embassy here Thursday was that Kissinger may have spent his time in contact with officials of the rebel movement in East Pakistan.

Await Hearing On LSD Possession

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Lynn T. Wilson, 20, of Lawrence and Olathe, Kan., unable to post $100,000 bond, is awaiting a preliminary hearing July 26 on a charge of possessing and selling a drug similar to LSD.

Wilson was arrested Wednesday night. He had been sought since drug raids July 8 resulted in the arrests of 14 persons. He is the fourth whose bond was set at $100,000.

Reported Missing In Boat Incident

KANSAS CITY (AP) — John T. McConnell Jr., 15, was reported missing after two boats collided late Thursday on Lake Lotawana at the east edge of Kansas City.

Witnesses said McConnell was thrown out of the boat he was operating. Three persons in the other boat were not hurt. The water is 25 to 30 feet deep where the crash occurred.

Homes of all four persons are at Lake Lotawana.

Heavy Veil on Kissinger Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry Kissinger's clandestine trip to Peking for President Nixon was one of the most closely held secrets in U.S. diplomacy.

While the President's national-security-affairs adviser was reported recovering from a stomach indisposition in the mountains of Pakistan July 9-11, in reality he was in China confering with Premier Chou En-lai.

And with all the speculation about what Kissinger was up to during his 12-day round-the-world trip, there was none even remotely touching on a visit to China.

The administration is extremely close-mouthed about the Kissinger mission, but it is

Big Disaster Role For Minute Parts

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A two-inch metal pin and two small set screws were key elements in a chain of events that led to a railroad derailment that claimed 11 lives, testimony at a three-day National Transportation safety board hearing indicated.

The hearing, concluded Thursday, was into a June 10 derailment of the Illinois Central City of New Orleans passenger train near Salem, Ill.

John L. Blake of SKF Industries, Inc., of Philadelphia testified at Thursday's concluding session of the hearing about an investigation conducted in the wake of the accident that also caused injury to 164 persons.

Blake said two set screws in the traction motor assembly of a pair of wheels that locked somehow worked loose. This allowed lubricant to leak out and in turn caused two roller bearings to burn out and the wheels to lock.

The locked wheels were dragged over the rails, the testimony continued, causing a second flange to develop on the outside of the wheels that eventually got caught in a switch and caused the train, traveling at 90 miles an hour or more, to jump the tracks.

The locomotive engineer might have been aware of the locked wheels, the testimony revealed, had a wheel-slip warning indicator been working.

The testimony disclosed that a two-inch metal pin had been left in the mechanism that reverses the wheels of a locomotive from forward motion to backward motion. The pin locked the reverser in the neutral position, which broke the electrical circuit that controlled the warning indicator.

J. Samuel Gamble, superintendent of the Illinois Central Woodcrest shop, said the reverser fault should have been detected before the train left Chicago for New Orleans.

"It should have been detected on the dispatch track by loading each individual engine," he said.

A member of the hearing panel said there was no attempt at the hearing to place any blame for the accident.

"We just attempt to determine what caused the accident from the facts presented and then present a finding," he said.

Plate Scraper
As Cake Icer

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My young grandson was watching me ice a cake by using a table knife and asked why I did not use my cake icer. This was a surprise as I told him I had never had such a thing but he insisted and went to a drawer for my new rubber plate scraper. I decided to try it and to my amazement the "cake icer" worked beautifully. It made it easier and quicker to cover the sides of the cake and to make swirls on the top. I promised my grandson the Polly Dollar if I got one for his idea. — RUTH

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I have tried using dust mops made with wool, acrylic and nylon yarns but they all shed too much lint. I would like to know what kind of dust mops the other readers have found to be most satisfactory. — JACKIE

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is really some constructive criticism for the grocery stores. Why do they put the bread and baked goods at the beginning of the shopping area, causing the customer to constantly shift them in her basket as she puts in heavier things that would mash them? I wish baked goods were nearer the check-out counter.

Also I wonder why the self-rising and regular flour are placed right against each other. It is so easy to pick up the wrong one as my friends and I have discovered. — HELEN

DEAR POLLY — I use a wire coat hanger to take the electricity out of nylon clothes. Just rub the hanger over them and you have no shock when removing your clothes. This also works on nylon seat covers in the car. Try it sometime. — VERA

Information Is Sparse
On Use of Snuff, Pipe

Dr. Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — This next year I am to teach a segment on the effects of chewing tobacco and dipping snuff. There has been lots of information on the effects of smoking, but I have very little information on chewing and dipping. We have more youngsters in junior high schools using tobacco in these forms than in smoking. Will you please tell me where I might write for some information?

Dear Reader — There is a lot less information on this problem simply because it is a lot harder to find as many snuff dippers or tobacco chewers than it is to find cigarette smokers. Your comments suggest it will soon be easier. We have the same problem with evaluating the effects of cigar and particularly pipe smoking. I would suggest that you write, U. S. Department of HEW Public Health Service, Health Services and Mental Health Administration, National Clearinghouse for Smoking and Health, Arlington, Va. 22203.

You can be certain that absorbing tobacco through the lungs, by smoke or dipping snuff or by absorption from the mouth all result in taking nicotine, which is a drug. The standard references to nicotine poisoning applies. A chronic tolerance can be developed with a form of habituation. In addition, some doctors have stated that swallowing tobacco juice may increase the incidence of cancer of the digestive tract or the bladder. It is possible that tobacco in excessive amounts may decrease sexual capacity. I can't think of anything good that it does, except support the tobacco industry, if that's good.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I have heard reference made that sunflower seeds fall in the drug category. Is this correct, and to what extent? What type of sunflower seeds? I eat a lot of salted sunflower seeds in the shell which I purchase at grocery stores. Also would breaking the shells be harmful to my teeth?

Dear Reader — There is nothing harmful in sunflower seeds except the calories and the amount of fat. Fat is the source of about 80 per cent of the calories in sunflower seeds. This is true of most nuts though, and the fat in sunflower seeds is mostly polyunsaturated fat whereas many nuts contain large amounts of saturated fat as well.

Breaking the hulls with your teeth will not hurt you. I wouldn't recommend this, however, for other nuts. Salted seeds and nuts should be avoided by those needing to restrict their salt intake for reasons of high blood pressure or heart trouble.

Preliminary Winners
Selected in Pageant

PRATT, Kan. (AP) — Preliminary winners of the Miss Kansas Scholarship Pageant Thursday night were Sandra Louise Rings of Topeka and Linda Ann Young of Mount Hope.

Miss Young, 21, representing Wichita, placed first in the opening swim suit competition. A music major at Wichita State University, Miss Young is 5-foot-5, weighs 117 pounds and measures 38-24-36.

Miss Rings, 20, representing Topeka, won the talent division as a soloist and a ventriloquist. A Washburn University junior, Miss Rings measures 37-26-37.

The 31 contestants will finish the talent and swim suit competition tonight.

Ask 200-Year Pact
Be Discontinued

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Santa Fe Railway Co. wants out of a 200-year contract which still has 138 years to run.

The Kansas City Terminal Railway Co. is asking the Jackson County Circuit Court to force Santa Fe to pay its assessments under the contract.

The 200-year pact was signed in 1909 by the heads of 10 of the largest railroads in the Midwest who foresaw an almost perpetual future for passenger, freight, mail and stock service.

The Court is being asked to decide whether Santa Fe, largest user of the terminal property, must still abide by the operating agreement.

Say Vote Division Attempted

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A black leader says Republicans and some Democrats are trying to divide the black vote in Kansas City and Jackson County with their scheme for redistricting the Missouri House.

Bruce Watkins, Democratic county committee chairman and leader of Freedom Inc., said in an interview Thursday night that seats of three of the four black House members from Kansas City are threatened and the black community also may lose its chance for a Senate seat.

The Republicans and some Democrats, Watkins said, are trying to protect their present representatives and senators and to reduce Negro representation in the Missouri Legislature.

A bipartisan commission failed to agree on new districts for the House, so the task was turned over to the commissioners of the State Supreme Court.

Another commission still is working on the job of drawing new Senate districts, but Watkins said there are indications that task also will be turned over to the court.

He said the black community is in a compact area with a population of about 120,000.

"It's criminal that they are trying to cut the black districts up and mix them one-third black with two-thirds white," Watkins said. "On a population basis we deserve four House seats and one Senate seat. All this is doing is adding to polarization."

"If we don't get the representation we deserve, then the city is in for trouble," he said.

Today's Producers Don't Fit Stereotype

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — What is a producer? What does he do?

The answer to those often-asked questions are different now than they would have been 10 years ago. In the old Hollywood, a producer was strictly a businessman — cigar-chewing, girl-chasing, tough-talking. And what he did was to put deals together.

He was out strictly to make a buck, and he figured his public responsibility was fulfilled when he gave a check to the Community Chest drive.

There are still a few of them around, but they're dying out, like the bald eagle. Nobody is shedding any tears.

The new producer, generally, is still business-oriented. He has to be, because he's in a profit-making enterprise. But he is a man who would prefer to be a writer or director, and got into producing when he couldn't cut it in those other fields.

Hence, he is sympathetic to artistic considerations. He wants to make a good movie and most of them, given the choice, would rather have an artistic than a commercial triumph. Most of them, today, have the good sense to hire writers and directors and then let them have their head.

Which brings us to Herb Gardner, a writer who has good things to say about the two producers he's worked for.

Gardner wrote "Who is Harry Kellerman And Why Is He Saying Those Terrible Things About Me." It's a Cinema Center Films production, and CCF's head man is Gordon Stulberg.

"He was great," Gardner says. "He's a little crazy, which helps. He never said a thing to us — in fact, at the first screening, he thought that maybe we had been too timid."

"He was like David Picker, the producer of my first movie, 'A Thousand Clowns.' He left me alone, too. I think the thing is that they like movies, basically."

"Broadway is my unrequited love," Gardner says. "They keep saying how they're looking for plays, so you show up with a play and nothing happens. Then you read somebody saying how they're looking for plays. It hurts."

Gardner, a creative man, has a creative theory which may be the biggest thing in international relations since Ping-Pong. He believes he knows what's behind the current move to restore trade with Red China.

"I think," he says, "that 20th Century-Fox is behind the whole thing. They figure all those moviegoers in Red China could redeem 'Tora! Tora! Tora!' and take it out of the red, as it were."

Nixon Announces His Plan To Visit Communist China

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Nixon announced Thursday night he will undertake "what I deeply hope will become a journey for peace" to Communist China before next May to confer with Premier Chou En-lai.

Nixon dramatically announced in a nationally televised and broadcast address a mission that will symbolize a thaw, after 22 years, in relations between the United States and the People's Republic of China.

He said he would go to mainland China at the invitation of Premier Chou. He said he sent Dr. Henry Kissinger, his national security adviser, to Peking for talks with Chou July 9 and 11.

Kissinger had been on an announced diplomatic mission, but his trip to Peking was one of total secrecy, during days on which he was said to have been ill in Pakistan.

The announcement, issued simultaneously in Peking, said:

"Knowing of President Nixon's expressed desire to visit the People's Republic of China, Chou has extended an invitation to President Nixon to visit China at an appropriate date before May 1972. President Nixon has accepted the invitation with pleasure.

"The meeting between the leaders of China and the United States is to seek the normalization of relations between the two countries and also to exchange views on questions of concern to the two sides."

Nixon said in anticipation of inevitable speculation about U.S. policy, he wanted to make clear that "our action in seeking a new relationship with the People's Republic of China will not be at the expense of our old friends."

In Washington, the ambassador of Nationalist China, James C. H. Shen, said news of the trip "will be received with considerable shock and disbelief in Taipei," the Capital of the Nationalist Chinese government on Formosa.

Nixon said the mission and policy "is not directed against any other nation. We seek friendly relations with all nations.

"Any nation can be our friend without being any other nation's enemy," he said.

He said he had taken the action because of a conviction that all nations will gain from an easing of tensions and a better relationship between the United States and China.

"It is in this spirit that I will undertake what I deeply hope will become a journey for peace, peace not just for our generation but for future generations on this earth we share together," Nixon said.

Nixon has been shaping a policy of eased restrictions on trade and travel between the United States and mainland China. He has not disclosed his intentions with regard to admission of Communist China to the United Nations.

At a news conference on April 29, Nixon said he hoped and expected to visit mainland China "sometime, in some capacity."

But his announcement that he is going to China as president was a total surprise. There was no advance text of his brief speech — it lasted less than five minutes.

Communists Claim Reply By U.S. Is Incomplete

PARIS (AP) — The United States attempted Thursday to launch a "useful dialogue" at the Vietnam peace talks by answering and posing a series of questions on a Viet Cong peace plan.

But neither U.S. Ambassador David K. E. Bruce nor the Viet Cong's Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh and Hanoi's Xuan Thuy were satisfied with the results and the conference appeared as deadlocked as before.

The 73-year-old Bruce, who according to the White House will be leaving his post for health reasons, addressed himself to the two-week-old peace package put forth by Mrs. Binh, and specifically gave what he termed answers to four questions she directed to him last week. Mrs. Binh, however, said the answers were "not concrete" and Thuy, said Bruce was simply trying to "delay" positive response to the seven-point Viet Cong proposal.

Bruce went down Mrs. Binh's list of four questions then asked five of his own.

Mrs. Binh had asked first whether the United States agreed to consider her seven points as a basis for negotiation.

Bruce replied: "Our answer is that we are willing ... to consider for negotiation any proposals that have been or may be put forward here by your side, as well as our own ..."

Secondly, Mrs. Binh had asked which of the seven points the United States agrees with and which it does not, which were positive, and which were unacceptable.

Bruce said that a full response would require "much more explanation from you."

"For instance," he said, "we note what seems to be a greater willingness on your part to commit yourselves specifically to the release of prisoners of war in conjunction with troop withdrawals. However, you deal with this complex issue in a highly superficial and misleading manner."

Connally Explains Economic Expansion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally said Thursday the nation's economic expansion is "broad in its sweep and deep in its track," but not strong enough as yet to cut unemployment significantly.

Connally, President Nixon's newly designated chief economic spokesman, told newsmen he didn't want to sound "very optimistic" that the unemployment rate will show a substantial decrease in the immediate future.

At his first general news conference since Nixon named him to the Treasury post, Connally said the unemployment rate will be going down—how much he didn't specify—while the still-rising rate of inflation will stabilize this year.

He also contradicted Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson's statement that the June unemployment figures, which showed the jobless rate dropping from 6.2 per cent to 5.6 per cent, represented a significant improvement.

Connally said the June drop could be traced to a statistical aberration for the most part.

The secretary, the only Democrat in Nixon's Cabinet, deftly dodged questions seeking forecasts on how the jobless rate and inflation rate will be doing next year, when Nixon is expected to seek re-election.

He said the administration will try to cut unemployment "in a very reasonable way" without refueling inflation.

While Connally declined to back away from Nixon's stated goals of 4.5 per cent unemployment and 3 per cent inflation by mid-1972, he said he is not prepared to say when the nation will reach these targets.

But he said the nation could expect some visible results on the inflation and jobless fronts by this fall as a result of the expansion in the economy.

"You can't come to any conclusion but that we're in a substantial expansion of considerable proportions," the former three-time Texas governor said. "It's broad in its sweep and deep in its track."

But Connally acknowledged that the economic growth from April through June, while strong, will not match the January-March growth.

Liberty Park Pool Cleanup Continues

Liberty Park Swimming Pool will be back in operation by 1 p.m. Saturday if all goes well, according to Jack Coutts, park director. The pool has been closed since Tuesday, when a malfunction occurred in the pool's chemical system.

According to Coutts, the water in the pool turned a greenish-brown and developed a salty taste and bad odor for some unknown reason on Tuesday. Coutts said that after the pool was closed, a sample of the water was taken to a chemist for analysis. The chemist's report showed that the water contained an unusual amount of iron.

The situation was in no way harmful to persons swimming in the pool, Coutts emphasized, but added the water just did not have the appearance of being "good, clean water."

The pool has since been drained and is in the process of being refilled, Coutts said. After that operation is completed, park officials will filter the water for 24 hours before allowing persons to use the facilities again.

"This should never have developed," Coutts said, speaking of the imbalance in the water's chemistry. He said that the chemicals used in the pool are of the same type which have been used for several years, and as far as he knew the amounts were the same.

"In the long run" it will be cheaper to drain the pool and refill it than attempt to filter the iron out, Coutts said. Park officials have no idea why the imbalance occurred, he reported.

Mrs. Kay Johnson, chairman of the American Red Cross' water program, said Thursday that swimming classes sponsored by the Red Cross and held at the pool have been cancelled until next Monday.

"You gloss over the fact that you still seem to be asking acceptance by us of the same fundamental objectives you have always sought here—the total, unconditional withdrawal of U.S. forces without any previous negotiation on the subject ..."

Mrs. Binh's third question was whether the United States is prepared to set immediately a date in 1971 for the total withdrawal of U.S. forces from South Vietnam. Bruce replied, "We have long been ready to negotiate a timetable for complete withdrawal as part of an over-all settlement. But the fixing of a withdrawal date must be the result of a genuine negotiating process ..."

Fourth, he said, Mrs. Binh had asked about U.S. intentions regarding the Saigon government. Bruce's response: "The South Vietnamese people must be allowed to determine themselves their own political future. The United States will not impose any government on South Vietnam, nor will it be a party to such imposition ..."

Bruce sought to learn through his own five questions:

1. Whether the Viet Cong put forth their July 1 proposals "as the only basis for negotiations here" or whether they were willing to consider U.S. proposals as well.

2. If, when the Viet Cong ask withdrawal of U.S. forces by the end of this year in return for release of prisoners, "without posing any conditions whatsoever," whether the United States must agree to this "series of arbitrary demands without any discussion or negotiation on them."

3. Whether the United States must fix a withdrawal date "without any negotiation beforehand and without any firm commitment on your part to do anything."

4. If, when speaking of release of prisoners, North Vietnam and the Viet Cong mean only those held in Vietnam or also those in Laos and Cambodia.

5. Whether the Viet Cong "still link the problem of cease-fire to the prior satisfaction of your political demands."

Phone Service Remains Normal

By ARTHUR EVERETT
Associated Press Writer

Telephone service across the nation remained near normal Thursday in the second day of a strike by 400,000 members of the AFL-CIO Communications Workers of America. Scattered instances of cable cutting or burning halted service temporarily to more than 10,000 homes.

Meanwhile, negotiations were continuing between CWA bargaining units and representatives of the Bell Telephone System. Wages and fringe benefits were at issue.

The most serious vandalism occurred in the Chicago area. A company garage was firebombed in Elgin, Ill., with damage estimated at $50,000 to $75,000, and windows in the central office building there smashed.

In Elgin, also, shots were fired through the window of a nonstriker's home.

In Mundelein, Aurora and Libertyville, Ill., 8,000 subscribers lost telephone service when cables were burned and cut.

Blackwell Starting Campaign

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Sen. Earl Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, accused the Missouri Legislature and state officials of irresponsibility Thursday and said he wants to see them stripped of their power to impose taxes on the people.

Blackwell, a candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, announced the start of a petition campaign to obtain a referendum on a constitutional amendment that would require voter approval of direct taxes on the people.

In a televised interview on KSD-TV, Blackwell said that after the people of Missouri rejected an income tax increase in a referendum in April, 1970 the legislature approved the increase anyway.

"Is this a responsible, representative legislature which will go right back and thwart the will of the people?" he asked.

"It's an irresponsible legislature, and that's why I want to see the power to tax taken away from them," Blackwell said.

The outspoken senator also accused administration officials of manipulating revenue figures to suit their own purposes.

The governor can "make us look broke or rich" in any given month or week depending on what his purpose is, Blackwell said. He said if state officials want a new tax or a tax increase or to make an increase permanent they say the state is broke.

Then, he said, "when the appropriation bills come along all of a sudden they find a big chunk of money somewhere. That's not right," he said. "That's being dishonest."

Blackwell said his organization, essentially the same people who helped in the successful income tax referendum campaign, will solicit signatures of at least 8 per cent of the voters in seven of Missouri's 10 congressional districts. He said he expects the job to take about a year.

Blackwell said that as long as legislators and state officials can resort to more taxation to finance the government's operation there will be no economy in government.

Two company employees were arrested and charged with arson.

Similar incidents affected 2,700 customers in the California areas of Berkeley, Albany, Concord and Oakland, and 850 residences in southwest Miami. Emergency crews quickly restored service to most of those hit.

Suburban Folio Beach, S.C., also lost phone service when cables were cut at Charleston.

More than 100 nonstrikers were evacuated from a New Rochelle, N.Y., telephone company office after a sulphur bomb was thrown into the building's ventilating system.

Eggs were thrown at company cars or vehicles driven by supervisory employees at Brooklyn Center, a Minneapolis suburb, and at Colma, Calif., south of San Francisco. Yonkers, N.Y. strikers hurled eggs and rocks at a team of men spraying telephone company property.

Also in Yonkers a telephone company supervisor was beaten and slightly injured while performing emergency repairs. His companion escaped unscathed. He was working atop a pole. Their company truck was vandalized.

A Cleveland policeman was shoved through a plate glass window by jostling pickets as nonstrikers were being escorted to work. After the incident, mounted policemen took up duty on the scene.

In Kansas City, Mo., a CWA picket line turned back construction workers and halted erection of an eight-story addition to the Bell offices there.

Regular installation and telephone repair work was more or less at a standstill. But supervisory employees in most areas were providing emergency installation and repair of phones.

In Washington, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said it expected no hitches due to the telephone strike in the scheduled July 26 mission of Apollo 15 to the moon. A single gate at the Cape Kennedy, Fla., launching area was being picketed by CWA strikers.

The heavily automated dial system of Bell Telephone was capable of pretty much running itself until equipment breakdowns become overwhelming.

City Hall Proposal Has Several Merits

Perhaps the most dramatic example of the benefits Sedalia stands to gain from its 1 per cent sales tax was made public Wednesday when Mayor Jerry Jones and other officials unveiled a proposal to build a new city hall.

Under the plan the $600,000 cost of the new city hall would be paid for entirely out of revenue from the city sales tax. Although a bond election would be necessary, no additional tax would actually be levied.

Obviously such a proposal should be much more attractive to voters, who balked in 1968 at a $1,200,000 bond issue for a new city hall. The current proposal offers a new building at half that cost with a built-in payment plan.

Based on tax returns to date, there is good reason to believe that the sales tax will meet the expectations of its supporters before the year is out. Nearly a quarter of a million dollars in sales tax revenues has been collected by mid-year, and now that Sedalia appears to be digging out of the recession, prospects for reaching the anticipated $700,000 in revenues appear good.

Thus there should not be any great difficulty in retiring the city hall bonds from this source.

The 1968 bond issue was further complicated by a site option for voters, which probably tended to confuse the issue. The proposal put forth Wednesday specifies construction of the new city hall on the site of the current one.

This is a logical choice, since the city already owns the property. There is an equally strong argument for building the new city hall there because of what it would do to revitalize the downtown section. Just such an economic shot in the arm is needed.

Of course the basic reason for constructing a new city hall is the same one that has been put forth for the last 10 or 20 years: the one we have now is a disgrace, a blot on the city's image. The unfavorable impression that the current building leaves with visitors and those who do business with the city cannot be minimized.

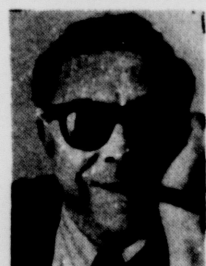

The proposal to build a new city hall that has been put forth by city officials is bold and imaginative, while at the same time reasonable and not extravagant. It deserves every citizen's thoughtful consideration.

Without Secrets, You're an Outcast

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — After being away from Washington for 17 days I found the town completely changed. Everywhere I went people were trading secret Pentagon papers to each other.

The first place I stopped was the National Press Club bar. It was jammed with correspondents holding up Xeroxed copies in their hands.

"I'll give you two Henry Cabot Lodge memos for one McNamara position paper," someone yelled. "I've got a Walt Rostow pre-Tonkin Gulf evaluation I'll trade for a Tet offensive report."

"How about a Joint Chiefs of Staff contingency plan for the invasion of Manchuria?"

I drank in embarrassed silence. Finally a New York Times man next to me said, "You don't have any Dean Rusk memos to Maxwell Taylor to complete my collection?"

I replied, "I don't have any papers at all."

"I thought you were a newspaperman," he said.

"I am, but I was out of the country when Daniel Ellsberg was handing out the documents."

He turned away from me with suspicion.

I tapped him on the shoulder. "You wouldn't let me see one, would you?" I asked.

"I should say not," he said indignantly. "These are classified documents."

I saw a friend of mine from the Washington Post.

"Murray," I said, "I don't know how to put this to you, but I was wondering if I could borrow a stolen Pentagon paper until I get paid on Thursday."

Murray said, "I'd like to help you, but I need every one I've got. I know the guy from the Boston Globe has some extra McGeorge Bundy cables. Why don't you ask him?"

I went down the bar to the Boston Globe man. "Healy," I said, "I'm plumb out of Pentagon papers. Could you spare a couple until I can make contact with a traitor from the Rand Corp.?"

"You know I'd do anything for you," Healy said, "but according to Atty. Gen. John Mitchell, these papers could compromise the government. I would be betraying a trust if I gave them to somebody from the press."

"Healy," I said, "I don't like to beg, but I'm the only guy in town that doesn't have a single stolen document. How can I hold up my head in this profession if I don't have a Pentagon paper to my name?"

Healy replied, "Look, we're dealing with 'top secret' stuff here. I know you wouldn't do anything with the papers, and Murray knows you wouldn't do anything to compromise the country. But does J. Edgar Hoover know it?"

A man from the Los Angeles Times said, "Does anyone want to trade the CIA's estimate of Madame Nhu for the plans of a military coup in Laos?"

"I'll do it," the bartender said, bringing out some papers from behind the bar.

"You have papers, too?" I asked in surprise.

"Sure," he said. "All my tips for the past month have been in stolen Pentagon papers."

"You wouldn't sell any, would you?"

"Not on your life. These papers were given to me on the condition I would never show them to strangers."

I left the bar trying not to hear the taunts of the drinkers.

A Chicago Sun Times man said, loudly enough for me to hear, "We ought to keep an eye on who comes into this place or our papers will be leaked all over town."

Gas All the Same, Despite Ballyhoo

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Despite the TV hocus-pocus about gasoline performance, the big names in gasoline such as Esso, American, Mobil and the rest give you no more happy motoring than the brand Xs that sell for 5 cents less a gallon.

Moreover, when you drive up your Shell dealer, he may fill your car with Gulf under a private exchange agreement between the two companies.

The big firms, without telling the motorist, also supply their gas to independents such as Bay, Hudson and Savon then sell it at up to 5 cents less a gallon than the firms' own captive stations.

What the driver gets from the Man Who Wears the Star, for example, is a 5-cent-a-gallon charge for an under-the-hood check, windshield wiper and the right to use a credit card. And some cut-rates now perform these same services.

For decades, the big oil companies have been spending billions to convince the bewildered motorist that one gas is peppier, cleaner or gives better mileage than the next.

The cost of advertising, of course, is added to the motorists' bill.

Nor is the car owner the only victim.

The brand name station operator must pay the big oil companies up to 6 cents a gallon more than the independents pay their wholesalers, sometimes for the same gasoline.

These gouges and outright fakeries are a sampling of what the Senate Anti-Trust and Monopoly subcommittee has turned up for its hearings July 20-22. Government officials, chemists and even oil executives have been invited by Chairman Phil Hart, D-Mich.

The Defense Department, which buys gas for all government agencies, has furnished Hart evidence that there is little difference among gasolines of the same octane.

Chemists have provided the subcommittee with information showing that additives such as Shell's TCP, however fancy it sounds, is really just a detergent to clean up the mess left by the lead which Shell uses to beef up the octane of the gas. Other firms have similarly glorified their anti-lead, anti-rust, and anti-freeze and anti-vapor-lock additives.

Hart has discovered hundreds of private gasoline exchange agreements among Esso, Mobil, American, Ashland, Standard (Ohio), Texaco, and others. They prove that Big Oil knows its gasolines' supposed individuality is mere salesmanship.

The private gas-swapping deals are purely for economy. In Baltimore, for example, gas trucks are barred from the Harbor Tunnel. The drive around the harbor is expensive.

A supplier on the west bank, therefore, provides gas to his east bank competitor's stations on the west side of the harbor. The east bank competitor reciprocates. The saving is enormous and only the motorist is hoodwinked. Since both gasolines are about the same, even the motorist isn't really hurt, unless he takes to heart the half-time and between-innings huckstering about the differences in brand gasolines.

Footnote: The gas companies admit they have exchange agreements for newly refined gasoline. But they say the additives make gasoline different. Chemists, however, say that while the additives may be chemically different, their effect are virtually the same.

For Col. W. A. Walker, snooping is a hard habit to break.

Defense Secretary Melvin Laird has ordered military surveillance of civilians stopped, but the colonel is determined to protect Picatinny Arsenal, N. J., from subversion.

As Picatinny's commanding officer, Walker has called upon "all personnel" to notify the security officer if they "become aware that any individual, organization or group is engaged in any activity which could threaten the national security or disrupt government operations."

He defines this subversive "activity" as almost anything "from distribution of disruptive printed media to destruction of government equipment and facilities."

A suspicious fellow, Walker doesn't even trust Picatinny's "cleared and trusted employees." They might be pressed into doing the enemy's evil work, he warns darkly, because of "weaknesses in their character or personal habits or... serious financial difficulties."

"It is imperative," he exhorts, "that such weaknesses be reported to the security office." Indeed, he expects all personnel on the post to keep an eye on one another — a duity demanded by them by "the oath of office" they took to "support and defend the Constitution of the United States."

Walker's snoop order, which would appear to violate Laird's directive on the subject, is contained in a Dec. 1, 1970 memo that is still in effect at Picatinny.

The colonel, reached at his Picatinny command post, assured us his surveillance procedures are not "out of line" with Army policy. Collecting information is permissible, he told us; it's "what you do with the information" that makes the difference.

"We don't keep files" on character weaknesses, he explained. He didn't say what is done with the weaknesses that are reported to the security office.

That some files must be kept is implied from his own memo, which directs: "It is vital that as much information as possible be collected and studied." Such information should include, the memo adds, any juicy items gleaned "from newspapers, periodicals or flyers."

"Remember," the memo concludes with an ironic fillip, "the vigilance of each citizen protects the freedom of all."

'Papers' Are Raw Material

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON (NEA) — From varied substantial sources it is clear now that former Defense Secretary Robert McNamara was interested in supplying the raw materials of history — not any kind of definitive, complete history — when he commissioned the massive study of the Vietnam war generally called the Pentagon Papers.

Blossat

It was appreciated at the time of commissioning the work, in 1967, that the array of available documents, however vast, would need to be read in the context of other materials and to be supplemented extensively by the diligent researches of the historians.

Though some analysis and evaluation of the collected papers was indicated from the start sources say it was McNamara's aim to keep the materials as free of bias as possible.

His widely known decision not to allow the collectors and analysts to interview any of the administration principals who wrote some of the documents was rooted in this purpose. McNamara did not want the materials colored by the recollections and interpretations of their authors.

Historians, of course, will need those recollections. But the judgment in 1967 was that it was the historians' job to get them, not the Pentagon's.

Men having some familiarity with the undertaking say McNamara, in further pursuit of his desire to keep the project unbiased, had nothing to do with any of the people involved in it. He did not choose them, and he never talked to them.

It can be said with authority that more than half of the 36 persons who worked on the study were military officers. Nearly all of these went back to Vietnam later for second or third tours of duty, and some were killed there. Other analysts were U. S. Foreign Service officers. Professional historians were not used. They could not be obtained on short notice, and it was felt they lacked needed grounding in Vietnam affairs.

With possibly a few exceptions, the Pentagon's compilers and analysts did not believe they were assembling materials of stunning originality. Most did not imagine that, if disclosed, the papers would be represented as the revelation of great new truths.

One source says some analysts think they got as much fruitful information about the war from reading the newspapers of the time as from plowing through the pile of documents.

(Some reporters who have canvassed the newspapers and news-magazines of the covered period say that most of the stuff in the Pentagon study was indeed in print at the time — though evidently little attended to.)

McNamara's goal of assembling history's raw materials untainted by any bias was of course, not realized. The analysts, aside from the fact they ranged from high competence to gross incompetence, were human beings with a full set of prejudices.

Everybody involved knew it, knew the analysis would be inescapably flawed. Where bias in the final writing stirred protest from analysts of differing views, the off-setting judgments were inserted in the name of balance. None of the 40-odd volumes went without cross-checking scrutiny.

The sprawling newspaper accounts of the study are complete, for the moment. But before long the Senate will be probing into our war involvement, and the role the Pentagon Papers play in explaining it.

The one-time presidential advisers and other specialists who will be testifying on the papers seem certain, on the basis of their public or private utterances so far, to stress the limitations of the huge study as "revealed history."

Many of these men are quite dovish on the war. It will be interesting to see whether their Senate counterparts will exercise similar restraint in judgment — or whether they will try to use the Pentagon Papers as proof for the hostile verdict they have already pronounced on the war.

Something tells me that everything is going to be wrong with this hand. Nevertheless, I would have made game in Wilbur Whitehead's column back in the '20s and things are no worse today."

Z led a diamond to his queen at trick two. West produced the ace and continued with the 10 of trumps. Z won this in dummy and led a spade. Once more a queen fell to West's ace. Back came the nine of trumps.

Z won this with the queen and was ready to operate. He cashed the king of spades, ruffed a spade in dummy, led a diamond in dummy, cashed dummy's king of clubs, led a club to his ace and played his last spade.

West held the eight of trumps and the queen of clubs. Both were good, but there was no way for him to make more than one trick. If he ruffed the spade, Z would discard the club from dummy. If he discarded his queen of clubs, Z would win a trick with dummy's seven of trumps.

"Could we have defeated you?" asked A. "Only with a club lead at trick one," replied Z, "but that lead would be almost impossible."

Mrs. Marge Atkins of the Pettis County Welfare office, said anyone receiving state welfare is eligible for Medicaid protection, not only those persons over age 65 as reported in a recent Hot Line answer. She said old age assistance could only be received by those persons over 65.

Hughes Is Not Running

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Harold E. Hughes of Iowa, renounced an attempt to seek the 1972 Democratic presidential candidacy Thursday after privately advising political allies to turn now to Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota.

Ending an undeclared campaign that took shape early this year, Hughes said he will pursue his goals as a senator, "unimpeded by the label of presidential candidate."

Hughes told a news conference he may well support a candidate for the nomination prior to the presidential primaries next year, but doesn't know which one. He said he was not advising his staff to support any particular candidate.

However, it was learned that he had privately suggested to a group of political associates Wednesday night that they assist McGovern, saying that his candidacy is important to keep the party from shifting to the right.

McGovern quickly issued a statement saying he and Hughes "share a common viewpoint on the most urgent concerns before our country today."

Offstage, McGovern's political aides went to work on the telephone, contacting Democrats who had been allied with Hughes, in hopes of gaining their support.

One McGovern lieutenant said the withdrawal of Hughes resolved a political dilemma that had threatened to divide the liberal Democratic constituency in the presidential primaries next year.

An aide to Sen. Edmund S. Muskie termed the withdrawal evidence of the success of the undeclared campaign being waged by the Maine senator, rated the leader on a long roster of Democratic presidential prospects.

Hughes, in telling his own political cadre of his plans to step aside, said he does not think McGovern can win the nomination.

Despite his assessment of McGovern's prospects, Hughes said if he were not in the race, the party would move to the right.

He said he thinks Muskie would move the party in that direction.

While Hughes was getting out, Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma was preparing to get into the presidential race.

Harris is to announce in Norman, Okla., Friday whether he will run for re-election to the Senate, or launch an exploratory presidential campaign.

Sources in Washington said he already has decided to seek White House nomination.

The Iowa senator, 49, and three times governor of his state, had been roaming the country periodically since early spring, in what he described as an effort to test his presidential prospects.

He insisted at a Capitol Hill news conference that his financial and political support had been increasing in recent weeks, but said his concern at national problems, particularly the drug problem, led him to decide that he should work within the Senate.

"I am now convinced that my greatest value to my country and to my state is to pursue the goals to which I am committed as a U.S. senator, unimpeded by the label of presidential candidate," he said.

He said his decision not to run for President was irrevocable, thanked his supporters, and said a prime motivation in his announcement was to free them to back the candidates of their choice.

Heavy Selling Lowers Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Heavy selling late in the session softened nearly all commodity futures on the Chicago Board of Trade Thursday.

Soybeans, higher by nearly 3 cents a bushel at one time, closed on an irregular tone, with nearby gains and deferred lower. Corn prices, up 1 1/4 cents at one time, lost as much as 3 1/2 cents, and wheat futures, also up more than 1 cent closed 2 cents lower. Oats also fell back.

At the close, corn prices were 1 1/4 to 3 1/2 cents a bushel lower, July 1.49%; wheat was 1/4 to 2 cents lower, July 1.54%; oats were 1 cent lower to 1/4 higher, July 70 1/2 cents; and soybeans were 1/4 lower to 2 cents higher, July 3.43.

Fires In The City

Two separate fires started within a two and a half hour period of each other in a garage at 615 East Fifth, owned by Ben Townsend, causing an estimated $2,500 damage Wednesday and Thursday.

The first fire occurred at 11:04 p.m. Fire Chief Emmett Vaughnt said the fire began in the rear of the building on the east end near an open door. Vaughnt said it was quickly extinguished, but heavy smoke was visible because of rubble in the garage.

A second fire began in the garage at 1:26 a.m. Thursday. Vaughnt said there was no evidence that the first fire had been rekindled since the second fire began in the front of the building on the west side.

No cause was listed for either fire, but responding firemen said the second fire appeared to be of suspicious origin. Vaughnt did not rule out arson, saying he might discuss the possibility with the police.

Vaught said that most of the damage had been caused by flames even though there was much smoke in both fires caused by burning debris.

Less Housekeeping For Kansas Soldiers

FT. RILEY, Kan. (AP) — Ft. Riley soldiers should be doing less routine house-keeping work in the coming year, military officials said Wednesday.

A spokesman said Ft. Riley has received $3.7 million to help professionalize units stationed there.

Civilians are expected to take over janitorial duties and kitchen police details in four infantry battalions. A battalion has about 600 men.

Several hundred civilians will be hired for tasks previously performed by enlisted men.

Among them, 56 will be added to the hospital staff in an effort to improve out-patient service.

Accidents

Joanna L. Walker, 35, Route 2, was treated for minor injuries at Bothwell Hospital and released after a two-car accident at 6:43 p.m. Wednesday at West Ninth and South Park.

Her car, a 1966 Chevrolet, was going west on Ninth when it and a 1964 Chevrolet, driven by Ruby A. Lutjen, 1314 South Stewart, going north on Park, collided at the unmarked intersection.

The Walker car was damaged in the front while the Lutjen vehicle incurred damage to the right front.

Two women were injured when a brick porch railing collapsed, throwing them off the porch at 236 South Moniteau.

Gertrude Thompson, 84, 707 South Lafayette, suffered a three-inch cut on her head, numerous abrasions and complained of chest pains.

Christine Freeman, 236 South Moniteau, was pulled from the porch when she tried to keep Mrs. Thompson from falling, police said.

Mrs. Freeman suffered a laceration to her right forearm and also complained of chest pains.

Both were treated and released from Bothwell Hospital.

Police said the house is owned by Thomas D. Russell, 234 South Moniteau.

Allies End Cambodia Offensive

SAIGON (AP) — The bulk of a 1,500-man South Vietnamese task force pulled back to South Vietnam Thursday from a fruitless, one-week drive into Eastern Cambodia.

They left behind about 500 troops to man a newly opened artillery and patrol base a few miles inside Cambodia in the Parrot's Beak sector.

The withdrawal came as the 11-day lull across South Vietnam persisted and only small and scattered clashes were reported by the allied commands.

On the northern front, South Vietnamese defense below the demilitarized zone were bolstered by the arrival of small U.S. artillery detachments at two newly established fire bases.

The bases, both in the Cam Lo area about 10 miles south of the DMZ, are part of the defensive chain guarding the northern frontier.

They were set up by the South Vietnamese during the past week after U.S. troops were withdrawn from their last two fire bases, Alpha 4 and Charlie 2, and turned over control of the northern defense to Saigon forces.

The U.S. artillery detachments are from the 24th Corps headquarters, based in Da Nang.

In the withdrawal from Cambodia, about 1,000 South Vietnamese returned to their base at Cu Chi, 20 miles west of Saigon.

They had hoped to trap a 400-man North Vietnamese sapper battalion believed in the area as well as uncover arms and supply caches.

The pullback indicated the Saigon command had scrapped a plan to link up with another 1,500-man South Vietnamese force which at last report, was moving southward from Svay Rieng inside Cambodia.

The operation was launched July 8.

The U.S. Command said B52 bombers flew two raids in the northwest part of South Vietnam and other raids against the Ho Chi Minh supply trail in Laos.

The command also reported, in its weekly casualty summary, that 29 Americans were killed in action last week, the highest toll in six weeks.

A command spokesman said the toll was up, despite the lull in fighting, because six men previously listed as missing were now carried as killed in action and seven others died of battle wounds during the reporting week, which ended at midnight last Saturday.

Schedule Meeting

There will be a meeting of the Pettis County Association of the Blind and all physically handicapped persons at 7 p.m. Thursday, July 22, at the home of Mrs. James Crystal, 1720 South Brown.

The organizational meeting is for the purpose of combining groups for both the blind and the physically handicapped into one organization.

More information can be obtained by calling Beverly Wright at 826-9572.

Discuss Program For Aged

At its second meeting recently, the Pettis County Council on Aging discussed the proposed meals-on-wheels project for this area.

The program is planned to provide at least one hot meal a day to Pettis County's aged by reaching them with a mobile unit, Mr. Thornberry explained last month.

The Rev. John H. Thornberry, council chairman, appointed a committee to determine who should be eligible to benefit from the program. The committee consists of Wilfred Lee (chairman), 2314 South Kentucky; Miss Beverly Long, 601 South Kentucky; Oscar Lawson, 631 North Osage; the Rev. Tom Davis, 400 North Lamine; and Major Marjorie Weber, The Salvation Army.

R. E. Schultz of the Missouri Human Resources Development Corporation told the council of a successful meals-on-wheels program in Trenton County.

The council's second project, transportation for the aged, is still in the exploratory stage, according to Mr. Thornberry. Possibilities of obtaining a vehicle for the project are being looked into, he said.

The next meeting of the council will be held Aug. 4 at the Federal Building, 319 South Lamine.

Accident Statistics Released

Figures showing the number of persons killed or injured and the number of accidents investigated by the Missouri State Highway Patrol's Troop A during the first six months of this year have been released by Capt. P. V. Volkmer, Troop A commanding officer.

In the 13 mid-western Missouri counties in Troop A, outside of cities of 10,000 or more population, there were a total of 59 deaths in the first six months of 1971, compared to 82 in the same period last year.

In the area, the following deaths were recorded for the first six months of 1971 and 1970 as follows: Benton County, one death in 1971, compared to eight in 1970; Henry County, seven in 1971, nine in 1970; Johnson County, seven each year; Lafayette County, six each year; Pettis County, five deaths, compared to four; and Saline County, six deaths in 1971 and five in 1970.

Following is a report of injuries received in traffic accidents in various counties for the first six months of 1971 and 1970. This year's figures are given first: Benton, 51 and 60; Henry, 84 and 77; Johnson, 90 and 87; Lafayette, 93 and 121; Pettis, 54 and 65; and Saline, 76 and 80.

A total of 947 accidents were recorded in the six area counties in 1971, compared to 933 accidents in 1970, Capt. Volkmer reported.
